MANILA, April 26 .- [Exclusive Dispatch.] Gen. MacArthur's troops entered Calumpit today, planting their guns in front of the church and bombarding the suburbs where the insurgents are still fighting behind trenches. This afternoon our losses were fifteen killed and wounded.

Maj. Starr, of Gen. Lawton's staff arrived in Manila tonight, traveling by way of Bocave. The object of his visit is to confer with Maj.-Gen. Otis in regard to further operations.

Gen. Lawton's troops are still camped near Norzagaray. Col. Summers, with the Minnesota and Oregon regiments and a troop of cavalry, advanced and captured Angat, returning to Norzagaray. Gen. Lawton is still without communication, as it is impossible to maintain it through the enemy's country.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—At the close of office nours tonight Secretary Alger said that the department as made not received a word from Gen. Otis today.

The manner changing the military situation. The only exception was the repatriation of the Spanish troops in Cuba and the Philippines. Nearly all of the Spanish troops who surrendered at Manila have gone home, and only a few troops remain to garrison some posts on the other islands. The report from Madrid that Gen. Otis has requested the Spanish garrison at Zamboanga, Island of Mindanao, be held in place until American garrisons can be sent to releve them is confirmed here. Had had not received a word from Gen. Otis today. The department's information consisted wholly of the Associated Press Dispatches.

There was some disappointment that Gen. Otis had not cabled. Officials of the department did not care to discuss he situation in the absence of official dispatches, but the feeling seemed to be that the American forces were meeting with more resistance than anticipated.

Secretary Alger said there had not been any change in the programme not to call for the 35,000 volunteers authorzed by the Act of March 2.

THEIR LAST STAND. The Filipinos Fight Desperately and Employ Aftillery.
[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

MANILA, April 26, 6:10 p.m.—[By Manila Cable.] Aguinaldo's army today is defending Calumpit energetically, which is said to indicate that the rebeis are finally making that place the last stand which the Americans expected them to make at Malolos. For the first the Filipinos are employing artillery. They brought two guns into action in the trenches today before

When the rebels began firing, two puffs of smoke, simultaneously from the trenches on each side of the railroad track, showed they were using cannon, which was a genuine surprise to the Americans. Several shells burst close to Gen. Wheaton's staff, but it seemed the Filipinos failed to master the machinery of modern shells, as they were unable to get the right range.

Young's Utah battery was ordered into position in the center of the Kan-sas regiment to silence the rebel guns, and at 11 o'clock the τapid-fire guns had been hurried across the river and came into line. At noon the rebels were still pour-ins movement should fait the administration will proceed immediately to give serious consideration to taking advantage of the authority conferred by the act. The matter has already been discussed by the President, and his advisers, but the official opinion is opposed to organizing a volunteer army unless it is absolutely necessary to do so.

At yesterday's Cabinet meeting the question was talked over with reference to Lawton's movement, and it was reported that the President declared that if the rebellion could not be crushed in any other way, he would send all the regular troops now in this country to the Philippines, and organize a volunteer force sufficient to take their places. The present is unquestionably the most critical period in the Luzon campaign, and the administration is awaiting with considerable anxiety news of the operations of Lawton's column.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.] CINCINNATI, April 26.-A letter written by Rear Admiral Kautz to his cousin, Mrs. Charles Lindley, of Cin-cinnati, has been made public by the reciplent. It is dated March 23, and is in the easy vein of a relative's private orrespondence. In the letter he says:

"You will probably read a lot of stuff bout me in various newspapers, but I can assure you that I am all right and have done nothing that I or my friends may be ashamed of, unless it is the making of a king, which I am obliged to do today. But he is a very inoffensive sort of young fellow, a native 19 years of age. He wears a French admiral's cocked hat, but not shoes or stockings or trousers; still, considering the torrid weather, he looks very well in this climate. But I hardly think he would look as well on Fourth street,

Cincinnati. "I am not a king here, but just plain boss of the ranch." The German Consul had that position up to my arrival, but since then he has been a very silent partner. I am very much afraid he does not like me; in fact, I am not at all popular here with the Germans. But I am all right with the English, and hope to pull through with them. I have no doubt of being sustained by the government in all I have done. I hope to get away from here in a month from this time, but may not be in San Francisco before the middle of May. With love to the Kentucky Colonel and yourself. Your cousin.

"P. S.—I am in error about the shoes and trousers of his 'Royal Hiness." At the last moment, his advisers prevailed on him to put on both, just for this occasion only."

(ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.) WASHINGTON, April 26 .- The pubferring to his position at Samoa, caused absolute consternation at the Navy and State departments at first reading. but there was soon exhibited a disposibut there was soon exhibited a disposition to minimize the affair, because it was clearly apparent that the letter was nothing more than a strictly private communication passing between members of the same family. Nevertheless, coming, as it does, close upon Capt. Coghlan's indiscretion, and following the publication of Judge Chambers's letter to his brother, criticising the Germans in Samoa, the opinion was held that Admiral Kautz's letter could not have other than harmful effect upon the relations between the United States and Germany.
The letter was brought to the attention of the President, and some sort of a reminder may be sent to that officer to be more careful in his correspondence. No orders have been issued to the Philadelphia to leave Samoa, as the admiral says, so it is probable that he made the statement on that point in offerences between the factions in Samoa within that time.

In official German quarters the letter was not treated very seriously, and there was no indication that the German authorities would take cognizance of it. The spirit of fun in the letter appealed to some of the diplomatic efficers, who laughed heartily over Kautz's description of the young King's make-up, and this amusing feature largely offset any irritation which night have been felt over the criticisms contained in the letter. The impression prevailed, however, that the Navy Department probably would deal with the indiscretion in such a way as it deserved.

As a matter of fact, the relations between the different commanders and officers are thoroughly courteous, and of an accommodating character.

"In spite of the ardious nature of his guard duty, Caot. Sturdee attended the funeral of a German sailor, with a deputation of an officer and sixteen men, and Admiral Kautz holsted his

Dealing with the commencement of hostilities. March 15, and the fact that a fragment of one of the Philadelphia's shells entered the German Consulate, the report says:

"The German Consulate was not previously notified of the commencement of hostilities, and was still inhabited, I immediately dispatched an officer to inform Admiral Kautz that the German Consulate was not evacuated, and that his shots had struck the building, and requested him to cease firing over Apia until the Germans were in safety. Admiral Kautz told the officer that twing to my representation, he would not continue firing over Apia, and the following day he sent his flag lieutenant to me and expressed regret at the occurrence.

"Admiral Kautz, March 16, directed that uniformed officers and men should be allowed to pass freely at all times. The American guard on duty were al-ways most civil."

That's What Grant Says of Porto Rico-His Manila Appointment. [ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, April 26.-Brig.-Gen Frederick D. Grant, who has been for some months military Governor of Porto Rico, with his wife and his staff arrived here in the United States trans-port McPherson. He said tonight: "Porto Rico will be a valuable acquisition to the United States. The natives there treated me with extreme cordiality. They are naturally peace-loving people, and all chance peace-loving people, and all chance of friction will vanish when they understand us better. The recommendations of the insular commission, the last member of which, Gen. Kennedy, returned home with me, will put an end to complaints about taxation and other civil matters concerning the island. I am now under orders to proceed to Manila, and expect to leave for the Philippines from San Francisco on May 5. I have just heard the report that Gen-Guy V. Henry, the Governor-General of Porto Rico, has asked to be relieved on account of ill health, and that dispatches from Washington state that in view of the appointment of his sucview of the appointment of his suc-cessor, my assignment to Manila has been held up and some of my friends are using my premotion to the va-cancy. [A. P. ERRIY MORNING REPORT.]

NEW YORK, April 26.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Havana says the instructions received by Gov.-Gen.

Brooke from Washington, to declare applicable to Cuba the immigration laws of the United States, are certain to give general satisfaction here. For one thing, the new regulations will prevent the increase of any more thing, the new regulations will prevent the increase of any more chinese laborers, who, though useful in certain employments, notably truck gardening, are from their habits, a constant menace to the public health. The sanitary bureau has been forced to burn out the fifthy quarters in which the various Chinese colonies have been living, there being no other shore and the redifferent alive. About 9 o'clock the nelghoborhood became aware that the Tettaton home was on fire, and on reaching there discovered the bodies were burned past recognition. Another undesirable class of immigrants is likely to be prevented under American law from overrunning the eastern haif of the island. This class is composed of shiftless negroes from Jamaico, Hayti and Santo Domingo, who may wish to better their fortunes at Santiago, and elsewhere in the east. Gen. Wood foresaw embarrasment some time ago and quietly put in force, oin his province, an order returning the would-be immigrants who could not show $40 each in ready money. Gen. Brooke's degree will establish restrictions of this sort at all Cuban ports on arrival of those who threaten to become charges on the island. While the present condition of agricultural prostration lasts there will be little or no room here for additional labor of the unskilled class.

The council of secretaries or insular Cabinet submitted to Gen. Brooke to day the draft of a decree providing for the registration of aliens under the terms of Article IX of the treaty of Paris.

A very sensible experiment is being tried by the Havana police authori-

tried by the Havana police authorities. This consists in the enlistment of a special squad of American ex-solidiers, which is to be used in patrolling the parts of the city most frequented by Americans. The new patrolmen are expected to introduce an element of coolness, and method into the service, and to minimize the friction now existing between the soldiers and poritice. They will be especially valuable in handling Americans, soldiers, teamsters and others who become disorderly in the streets and cafés.

The police force continues to engage in shootling affrays. Two detectives in plain clothes shot a saloon-keper yesterday, apparently without sufficient justification, and one roundsman was himself mortally wounded last Saturday by an antagonist who escaped.

The Cuban telegraph operators are the latest native body to complain of Americanism. They say that they are being displaced by operators from the United States, and have written to Gen. Gomez to ask his influence to restore them to favor. American operators are, in fact, in good demand in Cuba, owing to their greater experience and skill.

CUBAN TELEGRAPH COMPANIES. [ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.] LONDON, April 26.—At a meeting to-day of the Cuba Submarine Telegraph Company, the chairman announced that the affairs of the organization were in a satisfactory condition. The United States government is examining the company's concessions from Spain, and the British Foreign Office was supporting the company's claims. He then expressed the hope that at the next meeting he would be able to announce that the concessions had been fully recognized. The company's repairs to cables had cost over $40,000, and the directors were about to bring the account to the notice of the government of the United States. Company, the chairman announced that Negotiations on the subject had been opened.

BEEF THAT WAS LOST.

BOARD CHARGES THE MANITOBA CARGO TO UNCLE SAM.

Two - Recommendation That the Packing Company Be Reimbursed Promptly Approved by Secretary Alger.

ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT. WASHINGTON, April 26.—The board convened by a special order to examine and report on the responsibility for the loss of 300,000 pounds of refrigerated beef sent to Porto Rico last summer has submitted its report and findings.

The beef was shipped on the transport Manitoba from Swift & Co., Chicago and Kansas City. The board's findings are as follows:

The beef was good and fit for issue upon its arrival at the port in Ponce, August 10, 1898; was reported to the proper military authorities, and this condition continued after the release of the Manitoba from the reef August 18, 1898, aithough there is reason to believe that the refrigerator was not satisfactory during that interval.

That notwithstanding the time and labor involved in unloading troops and animals from the Manitoba, and in cleaning the ship, up to and including August 16, 1898, due and proper efforts were not made to issue this beef to accessible troops between that date and August 25, 1898, the date of the departure of the Manitoba from Mayature.

That this teck of effort was in the guez.

That this lack of effort was in the

That this lack of effort was in the nature of an acquiescence in the arrangements already locally mentioned for the nurchase of live beef, but lay primarily in the lack of control of the men and a responsible head of the subsistence department in Ponce, under the difficulties attending a new military situation.

That, both at Mayaguez, August 26 to August 31, to her departure for New York. September 7, proper effort was made to store this beef, and the meat was, in the opinion of the board, still fit for issue.

That the meat had not been subjected to any chemical process whatever for its preservation; that the loss of this beef was due to several causes, possibly deterioration, while the refrigerator plant was interrupted or disturbed, August 10 to August 14, exposed to high temperature from the time of loading on the transport to date of issue at Mayaguez and after; improper handling and faulty protection after Issue; deficient transport to troops; a month elapsed since the beef was dressed before it reached Mayaguez, which was the first time issues were made. Coming to the difficulties, in the face of no refrigerator at ports of entry.

That the United States is responsible entry.

stances, great loss was inevitable in the face of no refrigerator at ports of entry.

That the United States is responsible for the loss. The board is aware of an average waste in refrigerated beef—a loss properly chargeable to the contractor, but the board is unwilling to fix an arbitrary figure for such a shipment as that of the Manitoba, handled underneath adverse clreumstances existing, established by the testimony and by the absence of reliable data; that Swift & Co. be reimbursed for the beef.

The board construes the time limit of the contract with Swift & Co. 10 which the beef should remain sound for twenty-four hours after delivery to the United States commissary, if properly protected, the aventy-two-hour clause referring to intermediate stores in land refrigerators.

Secretary Alger has approved the findings of the board and directed the payment be made to Swift & Co., in accordance with the report. Nothing has been determined as to whether a board of inquiry will be ordered to make a further investigation. The board which has just reported was a board of survey.

these went Mr. Croker quickly, his friends and political adherents right on his heels.

When the promenade deck was reached, he was again surrounded, and the reception that followed appeared to give immediate satisfaction to the departing Tammanyite. As the time of the sailing of the ship drew near, the crush on 'the deck, where Mr. Croker was holding his levee, became so great that it was with difficulty that one could even elbow his way to the central figure. Hundreds of hands were thrust in front of Mr. Croker, and he grasped as many as possible. The ship appeared to be alive with men and women. The saloon passenger list contained some three hundred names, and their friends, combined with the assemblage of politicians, made one of the biggest crushes experienced on a departing liner in many a day.

Arriving at Southampton, Mr. Croker will proceed directly to his place at Wantage, where he has his racing horses. Speaking of his stable, Mr. Croker said: "I can't tell now just what I shall do in the racing line until I reach England. I have about twenty-five horses, six of which are yearlings. Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British Ambassador, who, with his family, boarded the New York, was scarcely recognized in the excitement which attended the departure of the Tammany leader.

Speaker Thomas B. Reed was also a passenger for Southampton with his family. A number of friends were at the pier to wish him B pleasant voyage, but in the rush of Tammanyites they were scarcely distinguishable. Mr. Reed said to a reporter that he was going abroad for a vacation of about three months' duration, and after his return he would settle in New York. He refused to discuss the political outlook. On being asked if he would talk with his fellow-passenger, Mr. Croker. Mr. Reed said: "Oh, we will probably say 'How do you do' to each other."

"Mr. Bryan is a nice enough fellow personally." he said, "but his 16-tō-1 idea, won't do. I don't believe Democrats should be shut out of their party for not accepting it. In 1900 the platform should be anti-trusts and a tariff for revenue only.

"My idea regarding the Philippines is that we should subdue them so as to show the inhabitants that we own the territory, and then turn the islands over to the inhabitants and let them govern themselves. But I would not be opposed to trading the Islands off for Canada or part of it, or the British West Indies."

Superintendent Welkins says that over fifty parallel veins of this ore have been found in the district, all of them containing chalco-pyrite, ore mixed with a large amount of native silver. One vein runs ninety pounds of copper and 293 ounces of silver per ton, while another assays 125 pounds of copper and 127 ounces of silver.

Banker Thorne's properties are located six miles from the Fairfax branch of the Northern Pacific. The ore can be shipped to the Tacoma smelter at a total cost of production of $30 per ton, leaving a profit of $150, insuring a large fortune for their owner.

TACOMA SMELTER.

Largest in the Northwest-Completed Next Month-D. O. Mills's Trip. THY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.

TACOMA, April 26.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] D. O. Mills, who arrived last night from San Francisco, is making extensive improvements to his North-western properties. Recently he and his associates acquired the controlling interest in the Tacoma smelter, the capacity of which is being quadrupled, to handle the augmented shipments from the Treadwell mine, the Alaska and Bunker Hill, and the Sullivan mine, Idaho, which are controlled by Mills and Rothschilds.

When completed next month, the Tacoma smelter will be the largest in the Northwest, with a capacity of 200 tons of ore daily. The Treadwell mine has been shipping down concentrates faster than the smelter could handle them, with the result that an immense quantity of them are now awaiting the completion of new blast furnaces and Today Mills went to Whatcom county to visit the timber lands and the new coal mine near Mt. Baker, to which it is planned to extend the Belling-ham Bay and British Columbia Rallroad controlled by him. #### MURDOCK NOTE SUIT.

Left Home. (ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.)

WILLOWS, April 26.-The announce ment that the defense in the Murdock note suit would open its case today resulted in the courtroom being crowded when the court convened. The principal witness this morning was Burgh, but his examination answering a question regarding a conversation which took place between him and Sam Murdock in relation to Sam Murdock's leaving the home of Mary Ellen Muvdock in June or July, 1877.

Gen. W. H. L. Barnes, for the defense, wished to show by Burgh's testimony that Sam Murdock had left for the home, because he and Mary Ellen had had some trouble, and that his belongings had been thrown out of the house. The plaintiff, by a previous witness, introduced the subject of this conversation, and it was made to appear that Sam Murdock and Mary Ellen Murdock had had trouble over pear that Sam Murdock and Mary Ellen Murdock had had trouble over the loaning of money to William Mur-dock by Gawn Murdock. Johnson's objection was sustained, after the jury had been removed from the courtroom, and the offer of the defense to intro-duce this testimony had been fully ex-plained to the court and objected to by Johnson for the plaintiff.

plained to the court and objected to by Johnson for the plaintiff.

Defense wished to show that the trouble did not occur over money matter, but over an entirely different matter. The court allowed the offer of the defense to introduce such evidence to appear on the records of the court, and the matter may come up at a later date. Gen. Barnes entered an exception to the ruling of the court, which he had done in one or two other instances during the trial.

THE GRAND PARLOR

Warm Fight for Orator and for Grand Trustees.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.] SALINAS, April 26.—The Grand Par-lor convened at 7:30 o'clock this even-ing, Past Grand President Gearney read a telegram from San Francisco as fol-"The director of the mint at Washington informs the Evening Post that the San Francisco mint will make that the San Francisco mint will make the medals if material and dies are furnished." This refers to the proposed medals for California volunteers.

medals for California volunteers.

Various committee reports were received and discussed. Changes in the bylaws proposed by the Committee on Legislation will probably not be settled until tomorrow morning. As the time approaches for election of officers, the fight for the position of Grand Orator and Grand Trustee grows warmer. For Grand Orator, much work is being done by the friends of both Dr. Hawkins and L. F. Byington. The latter may be the choice. For Grand Trustee C. S. Dunbar of the Santa Rosa Press-Democrat will probably be one of nine.

For tomorrow's entertainment of visitors, the Executive Committee will carry out Tuesday's programme, which was interrupted by a heavy downpour of rain. In the morning there will be a parade, and in the afternoon a league game of ball between Watsonville and Santa Cruz. In the evening there will be a banquet given at the Armory Hall to the grand officers, delegates and invited guests, at which it is expected there will be 400 people. The Grand Parlor will rush its work tomorrow, in order to complete the session before nightfall.

STOCKTON, April 26.—A. B. Bannett, one of the pioneers who reached San Francisco on the ship Salem, March 12, 1849, died tonight in this city. He was one of the first peace officers of the State, and framed the afterward-famous mining laws of the Columbia district, which for years stood as the model laws for miners in this State. He was the first deputy that the veteran Sheriff, Thomas Cunningham, had serving as his under sheriff during the first term of that officer. He was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., in 1822. He was never married, and his only living relative is a half-sister, whose home is in San Francisco.

Jack Curtis Kept Incommuneado.
FRESNO, April 26.—Jack Curtis was brought back from North Ontario, near Los Angeles, last Monday, and detained in Jail until this afternoon, when he was released. His incarceration was kept a secret, as the officers and District Attorney did not desire certain persons suspected of arson to know that Curtis was in jail. Last summer a church building belonging to City Trustee Joseph Spinney was destroyed by fire, and arson was suspected at the time. The officers are now on the right clerw, and sensational arrests are likely to follow. Jack Curtis Kept Incommuncado.

Prosecution's Closing Argument is not Completed-Jury May Be Charged Today-Courtroom and Corridors Crowded.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.] CANTON (O.,) April 26.—The closing argument in the trial of Mrs. George was in progress when court adjourned this evening. Prosecuting Attorney rene began his argument shortly cupy the greater part if not all of toorrow forenoon in completing it. It is now thought that the jury will be charged immediately after the noon re-Thursday.

The day was without special incident, so far as the accused was con-cerned. Mrs. George sat all day with downcast eyes, and was occasionally noved to tears as the story of her life was narrated.

The courtroom was thronged from early morning to the hour of adjourn-ment, and many who could not gain admission stood in the courthouse cor-ridors all day to get what they could ear and see at long range.

Philippine Islands and the British colonies Mr. Barrett's remarks were of the sam enor as his speeches at Hongkong and tenor as his speeches at Hongkong and Shanghai recently, showing the effect of the American possession of the Philippines to be mutually advantageous to the United States, Great Britain and the Far East, although America, he said, could be depended upon to compete keenly with Great Britain and Germany and secure from them all the trade possible, making Manila the base of this competition. Admirai Lord Charles Beresford and Sir Charles Dilke warmly congratulated Mr. Barrett upon his address.

Freight Rates Can Be Cheapened by Water if not by Rail-German Rivalry-What to Do With

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, April 26.—Senator Wil-ism P. Frye of Maine, chairman of Senate Committee on Commerce was given a dinner tonight at the Waldorf-Astoria, as a testimonial for his efforts in obtaining for New York City the improvements allowed in the recent Harbor and River Bill passed by Con-tress. The dinner was given by the eading commercial organizations of Nearly six hundred guests sat down to the fifteen tables in the grand ban-quet hall. The room was respiendent with flags and flowers. The guests marched to the banquet room at 7:30 Gov. Roosevelt was chair-

Others present at the guests-of-honor table, seated on either side of Gov. Roosevelt and Senator Frye, were Ab-ner McKinley, ex-Gov. Morton, Gen. erritt. Senator Depew., Senator Pasco enator Gorman, Senator Platt. Charles . Schierman, William L. Strong and While the dinner was in progress,

While the dinner was in progress, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Boldt entertained at their house in honor of Mrs. Senator Frye and her two grand-daughters, the Misses White and Briggs. After dinner, the party went to the hotel to listen to the speeches. A letter of regret from President McKinley was read, in which the President said: "I beg you will convey to the guest of honor of the evening, Senator Frye, my congratulations upon this splendid recognition of his devoition to the commercial and industrial interests of the country."

Senator Frye, in his speech, spoke of the vast resources of America, its wonderful progress in the line of production, of the overproduction which ensued and the necessity for the development of foreign commerce. He resited the brave efforts in this line and ted the brave efforts in this line and be measure of success met with. He tinued:

The commercial war upon which world has entered will become cer and fiercer. Germany will be nerver and hereer. Germany will be our most dangerous rival. Germany is our most formidable enemy. She is skilled in the arts of commerce and mechanics; she is persistent, aggres-sive, annoying and indomitable—I tell mechanics; see is persistent, aggressive, annoying and indomitable—I tell you, gentlemen, that we have more to fear from Germany than from any other nation on earth.

"But despite all her efforts, we will surpass her and be more successful than she in the contest for prestige in commerce. Her wages paid are not inchalf ours. Shall we reduce ours to the plane of .hers? That might breed a discontent which would entended the purchasing power of our people and still nore increase the surplus. Shall we run our mills on one-half or one-half time? That would reduce our purchasing power and largely increase the cost of our product.

"I do not believe that our railrade."

"I do not believe that our railroads can reduce freights much unless a new motive power is found, but our water-carriers can and probebly will. Freight ships will be increased in carrying capacity and rates still further reduced. Let me illustrate the effect of such increased capacity. When the larger freighter was 3000 tons, the rate across the Atlantic was $8.50 a ton; when 6000 tons, $6 a ton; when 8000 tons, $3.50 a ton. "All the necessary facilities for these deep-draught ships must be provided for. It was just a look into this future which compelled me to insist, even to the point of obstinacy, that $7.000.000 should be expended in New York Harbor and that our ships should find here a channel 2000 feet wide, with a depth of forty feet end ample dockare room. I trust, too, that the time is not far distant when we shall have a decenwater way from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic Ocean; still further increasing our facilities and decreasing our facilities. "I do not believe that our railroads creasing our facilities and decreasing our rates.

"Another thing in my judgment is importatively required. We should carry in our own ships, under our own flag, all of our imports and exports. We should pay to our people the $100.000 a day we now pay to foreigners. We should make of the officers of these ships active, intelligent and interested agents for the discovery of new markets and the promotion of our trade. Suppose to accomplish it does s. Suppose to accomplish it does us $8,000,000 or $10,000,000 and y, will there not be ample con-ation? Great Britain, Germany pensation? Great Britain, Germany and France will not surrender this carrying trade without a adetermined conflict, which alone will reduce freight rates at least 25 per cent. The best estimate, and I think a correct one of the amount in tons of our forgen commerce, is about 50,000,000. The average ifreight rate for the world over is $4 a ton. Twenty-five per cent. reduction on rates will save to our people, $50,000,000 annually.

"Consider for a moment another and."

people $50,000,000 annually.

"Consider for a moment another and, in my opinion, a most important aid to our foreign commerce. Where is the most promising field for it in the near future? Surely in the Orient. Humboldt, more than fifty years ago, declared that the commerce of the Pacific would, in time, exceed that of the Atlantic, and will the intelligent men today doubt the realization in the near future of what then seemed a dream? Do not England. France, Germany, Russia and Italy, by their conduct recognize that the prophecy is to be fulfilled?

"How shall we secure our share of this commerce? The Suez Canal was opened in 1870. Before that, New York was almost as near the Orient as Liverpool was, but after, Liverpool had the advantage by from three to four thousand miles. From 1870 to 1888 Rugland's commerce with the East intreased 40 per cent, with the rest of the world only 17. Shortened routes and lessened freight charges had their legitimate results. Our government should construct the Nicaragua Canal or some other istimian water route, at the earliest possible time; making it neutral to the world. except to any nation at war with us. This would bring us one day's sail nearer Shanghai than Liverpool will be; the average a thousand miles nearer all the northern ports of China, where we now look for an export trade and shall hereafter. 1900 miles nearer Yokohama. 2000 miles nearer Korea, 1000 miles nearer Melbourne, 1800 miles nearer Sydney, 2800 miles nearer New Zealand, from three to five thousand miles nearer of South America, would bring us from one to five thousand miles nearer needs of South America, would bring us from one to five thousand miles nearer peoples whose im-How shall we secure our share o ooo.

"I am silent as to the magnificent advantage such a route promises to our domestic trade, bringing this city 10,000 miles nearer by water to San Francisco, the Columbia River, and Puget Sound, shortening the time by steam from forty to 20 days, by sail from 120 to $5, and reducing freight rates at least one-third; for my discussion this evening is confined to our exports, trade and its extension."

Senator Frye spoke of the Sagnish war and the gratitude of the Cubans which must redound to the good of this country in a commercial way. He added:
"Porto Rico is ours, and its trade war and the gratitude of the Cubans which must redound to the good of this country in a commercial way. He added:

"Porto Rico is ours, and its trade will be. But more promising than the acquirement of many such islands is the acquisition by us, under the terms of the same treaty, of the Philippine archipelago, undoubtedly the most fertife and productive unexplored land under the sun. For three hundred years under Spanish domain, more oppressive and cruel than known elsewhere in the world, treated as a mere sponge to be squeezed by the hand of the oppressor; burdened by taxation, the most ingenious and intolerable; without any labor-saving machinery, a third of its products rotting in the ground for want of transportation to the, sea; its revenues plundered by Spanish officials; yet in 1897, with rebellion rife, according to United States. Commissioner Harden, the exports were $41.342.000; imports, $11.343.000; balance in its favor, $23,899.000.

"Give the island a good government, protection to life and property, an advancing civilization increasing intelligence, fairer wages, honest collection of revenues, railroads and highways, improved agricultural implements, cable connection with our country and telegraph lines between them, and who doubts that commerce will in a few years be quadrupled? The bulk of it will be ours, even with the open door, for we shall have the advantage of England, Germany and France in distance and in freight vatex Under present conditions those rates have been since 1877, from Manila to the United States, a little less on the average than one-half those from Manila to England and 10 per cent, less from our country to Manila than from England. The islands are marvelously rich and productive, and yet not more than one-quarter of the tillable land is under cultivation."

After mentioning the possibilities of the domestic trade of these possessions is insignificant, cant, compared to that reveals of the same of the same of these possessions is insignificant. Cant. commared to that reveal alone of all these, to ignore this stupendous fact?

"What shall we do with the Philippine Islands? Restore them to Spain! Not one even of Mr. Carnegie's Reform Leaguers by whom, according to the press, the name of President McKinley was hissed and that of Aguinaldo cheered, at a recent meeting in Boston, proposes this. Shall we forthwith surrender the sovereignty to a native government? There is not an intelligent man in the world who has familiarized himself with the conditions; there is not an officer of the United States with experience, from Admiral Dewey down; there is not an investigator of the islands and their peoples; there is not a writer who instructs us from personal observation who does not declare their unfitness for government. There was not a witness before our Paris commission who did not unhesitatingly assert it.

"What shall we do with the Philip-unitness for government. There was not a witness before our Paris commission who did not unhesitatingly assert it.

"What shall we do with the Philippines? In my judgment, there will be no uncertain sound in the answer of our people. They have been acquired hastily, and in their acquirement we have dealt generously with Spain. We will shold them as our own, for the good of the peoples who inhabit them, and for the immense advantage, commercially, they promise us. We will give them a good government; relief from burdensome taxation; ample security in all their civil and religious rights. We will build highways, construct railroads, erect school houses and churches. We will allow them to participate in government so, far and so fast as we may find them capable. We will give employment to labor and good wages to the laborer.

"We will arouse in them an ambition to become good citizens, competent to manage their own local affairs and interests. We will make it possible for them some time in the future to form a stable republican government, capable of making treaties, enforcing their rights under them, and observing their obligations. Then we allone, being the judge of their competency, will surrender to them the sovereignty, reserving to ourselves the naval and coaling stations necessary for our commerce and its protection. In the meantime, we will not restore a rod to Spain or sell a rod to any nation, on earth, nor will we permit our surgeme authority—to be diminished or freestioned by any power within or without the islands. Such utterances as these may subject me to the charge of being an expansionist. I plead guilty to the indictment, and find myself in most everal vast ecquisitions of territory since the establishment of the reverse.

Senator Frye then mentioned the several vast acquisitions of territory since the establishment of the government to show that expansion has always been the nation's policy.

After mentioning the possibilities of the domestic trade of the spossessions is insignificant, compared to that regarded from a commercial strategic point of view. They front the entire China Sea; are only two days' sail from Hongkong; they introduce us to the Orlent with its seven or eight hundred millions of people, with imports now exceeding $1,500, 000,000 annually, which advancing civilization will double in a few years. They give us for the first time a tremendous moral force, a most potent voice for the preservation of the 'open door' in China. Who can estimate the value in the future of such a commanding position to our foreign commerce? Are we to fold our hands and allow this harvest to be gathered by our rivals? We have treatly sight in vaded and the doors closed against us? The nations of the earth are today near neighbors. They all heard the thunder of Dewey's guns and recognize this republic, for the first time, as one of the great powers of the world. SHORTAGE IN SAMLL BILLS.

Treasurer Explains Why-Treasury Never Richer in Funds Than Now. P. EARLY MORNING REPORT.]

NEW YORK, April 26.—United States Treasurer Ellis H. Roberts, who is on a business trip to this city, in talking last night of the scarcity of bills of small denominations throughout the "This lack of small bills is due in some parts of the country to the fact that the bankers do not take the trouble to send in their bills of large denominations and get small ones in exchange. This is the case nearly everywhere except in the larger cities of the East and in the porthwestern States. In the northwest there has been such a wave of prosperity during the last two years that the bankers and merthan the had no occasion to send their money East, as they did in pre-vious years. They are rich enough to keep their money at home.

There was a lack of small oills in this city up to a few months ago, but now the bankers, merchants and business men of every kind have all the small bills they want. They have got them by sending on their larger bills. The revenue stamps on checks have probably had something to do with bringing into more general use the smaller bills.

"The reason we cannot issue the smaller bills as fast as the bankers want them is because we are restricted by law. The law allows us to issue only 346,000,000 dollars in United States notes, and the silver certificates are restricted by the number of standard dollars held in the treasury. We are now printing only small bills and have a big supply on hand, but cannot issue them because of the restrictions I have mentioned. So the only recourse for the banks that want small bills is to send in large bills in exchange for them.

It's worth a dollar here and there for the right remedy for the insidious ills that make the big diseases.

When a man's liver is "out of whack" or his digestion is bad, or his appetite "finicky," he should take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It makes a man "hungry as a horse." It fills the blood with the life-giving elements of the food a man takes. It is the great liver invigorator, It makes the digestion perfect. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder and nerve tonic. It drives all impurities from the system. It cures nervous prostration, bilious complaints, malarial troubles and of per cent. of all cases of consumption. The medicine dealer who offers a substitute for the sake of a few extra pennies profit, is dishonest.

"Would have written you before now, but the sake of a few extra pennies profit, is dishonest.

"Would have written you before now, but thought I would wait until I got entirely well." writes Mrs. Mary Tibbs, of Hitchcock, Galveston Co., Tex. "Now I am pleased to say that I am sound and well. I have been using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Pleasant Pellets.' We think your mentiones the best in the world. I was troubled made in the weakness, headaches, cold feet and hands, a disagreeable drain and general weakness, exceedingly nervous, had poor appetite, wonds exceedingly nervous, had poor appetite, consilection, distress in the stomach, too years' standang. Three bottles of 'Pavorite Prescription' and three of 'Golden Medical Discovery' completely restored my health."

Constipation and biliousness are nasty, nagging disorders that keep a man or woman dull and miserable. Dr. 'Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a sure, speedy, permanent cure. One little 'Pellet' is a gentle laxative and two a mild cathartic. They never gripe. Dealers sell them. Nothing is 'just as good."

BISHOP WALTERS SAYS NEGROES

Declares That the Filipino Were Treated Better by Spain Than are the Afro-Americans by Southern Whites.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.] NEW YORK, April 26.—At the annual conference of the African Methodist Episcopal Church in Jersey City today, Bishop Walters spoke of the recent burning at the stake of Sam Hose, colored, at Palmetto, Ga. The bishop asserted that the charge of assault which was put forward in justification of the treatment of Hose was unfounded and would be shown to be false. He warned the whites of the North that if the negroes of the South ere not given fair treatment, race war would be precipitated.

"The Cubans and Filipinos," he said,

"The Cubans and Filipinos," he said,

"These who speak apparently of our extermination," he continued, "will find when that work is begun that all the white people of America will not be against the negro any more than they were during the Civil War."

Bishop Walters announced that the first Sunday in June would be observed as a day of fasting and prayer to Almighty God in this hour of distress.

The pleasant method and beneficial effects of the well known remedy, Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., illustrate the value of obtaining the liquid laxative principles of plants known to be medicinally laxative and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative, cleansing the system effectually, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers gently yet promptly and enabling one to overcome habitual constipation permanently. Its perfect freedom from every objectionable quality and substance, and its acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, without weakening or irritating them, make it the ideal laxative.

In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal qualities of the remedy are obtained from senna and other aromatic plants, by a method known to the California Fig Syrup Co. only. In order to get its Beneficial effects and to avoid imitations, please remember the full name of the Company printed on the front of every package.

HOLLISTER Cal.
Dear Doctors—I am so glad that I took Hudyan, for it has relieved and cured me entirely, My bowels and liver are now in splendid condition, and I don't have to resort to faxatives. They act naturally. I am more ambitious, don't feel tired upon arising in the morning, and don't have any more headache. I wish I could pay you several times the sum your Hudyan cost me. I shall endorse your Hudyan as long as I live. Yours truly

SACRAMENTO. Cal.
Dear Doctors—Every one who is troubled as I was with habitual constipation, should know of your Hudyan. It is a splendid medicine. I suffered for many years, and it seemed that I would never find anything more than temporary relief. Most laxative medicines would leave me worse than before. Your Hudyan acted admirably and I was enabled to get along without it within three weeks time. I have been all right ever since. I feel better now than I ever did. Very gratefully.

MRS. LeJ. TAYLOR.

The issue of the marriage is one child, now living. The husband dies without leaving a will. All the widow has is his deed of the half interest. As the property was bought wholly with her own money ten years ago, and the property is mortgaged, she would like to avoid administration with its expense and annoyance. Is there any way she can get a clear title without administering on the estate? Can she sell the property until it has gone through administration?

It is not necessary to administer on the estate in order to define the title to the land. The heir would be the party dependent. But in respect to personal property, administration is necessary.

S. A. K. writes: Mrs. B dies possessed of a homestead property which she inherited from her father, and of various stocks in corporations. She leaves no will and is survived by her husband and four children, all of the latter being of age. Can the husband increase his legal taxes on it? What interest has the husband in the estate? What interest have the children? Can the husband will the property or his interest in the same to any particular child, with or without the consent of all the children? In case the husband married again is the second wife entitled to any part of the property left by the first wife? Is there any possible way the second wife can obtain the property or any part of it except by consent of all the children?

As administrator of his deceased wife's estate does not the husband have to report to the surrogate? If so, how often? How long can he take in settling the estate?

The property is all in New York State and all interested parties reside there except one of the children.

The husband is entitled to courtesy, that is to a life estate in the whole of the land; at his death the four children inherit equally. The husband cannot in any way increase his interest in it. He cannot will the property because he has only an estate for life. In case of remarriage the second wife can have no sort of interest in the property, and there is no possible way to obtain any. There has been no change in this respect. She must prove her widowhood specifically now as before.

A subscriber asks: Can you inform me of the necessary forms of partnership papers? Must these be stamped and witnessed, or is the signature of the two partners all that is necessary? Partnership agreements in writing for general /or special partnerships must be stamped. They do not need to be witnessed nor recorded. But they may be verbal as well as in writing. Special partnerships must be by written articles signed and acknowledged before an officer and recorded. But not otherwise witnessed. The certificates signed by the parties must state:

(1.) He has twelve months in which to redeem.

(2.) The mortgagee cannot enforce any claim for intermediate improvements since the statute of redemption gives him no such right. If he had it he might thereby put redemption out of reach by building an expensive house, which the mortgagor redeeming could not pay for.

W. S. M. asks: What is the law regarding the recording of marriage licenses after the ceremony has been performed, and upon whom does the penalty, if any, fall? Would failure to record be disastrous to the legality of the ceremony?

The default of the clergyman or other who married the parties cannot destroy or suspend it. The right in each extends to the natural and usual flow of all the water, unless scribes a penalty or authorizes an indictment as in some of the States he must bear it. You do not state how the right-of-way was obtained. If it was lawfully condemped and paid for you cannot compel removal. But I would judge that you can force the main to be put deeper out of the way, provided it is reasonably practicable. The maxim "You must so use your own as not to injure another," is applicable to such a case.

It is unnec-essary. Without money or price you can consult a woman, whose knowledge from actual experi ence is greater than any local physician in the world. The folwing invitation is freely offered;

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly micate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, mass. All fetters are feetered, opened, read and answered by women only. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established the eternal confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Out of the vast volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than

They halted a short distance from the Bunker Hill and Sullitance from the Bunker Hill and Sullitance from the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mines. Soon after in little bunches came the non-union miners to go to work. They were stopped by the strik-ers, and Boyles urged them not to go to work. One or two of the non-union men tried to push through the crowd of strikers, but were forced back, with the remark that the union did not intend them to go to work. Then T. S. Murray, a leader of the strikers, pulled a big revolver, which he leveled at a buch of Bunker Hill employés.

"I tell you what the proposition is," he shouted; "you walk down that hill inside of four mintes, or else go down He drew his watch, and as he counted

He drew his watch, and as he counted the seconds the working miners faltered and started down the hill. A half dozen of them went into Black's boarding-house on the main street of the town. They were pursued into the house by strikers. "What will we do with them;" shouted somebody. "Run them down the cañon," was the reply. With that they started the non-union men toward the foot of the town. Dr. France, coroner and physician of the hospital, remonstrated.

Boils and Pimples

AN UNFAILING SIGN THAT

When Nature is overtaxed, she has her own way of giving notice that assistance is needed. She does not ask for help until it is impossible to get along without it. Boils and pimples are an indication that the system is accumulating impurities which with the system is accumulating impurities which a warning that can not safely be ignored. To neglect to purify the blood at this time means more than the annoyance of painful boils and unsightly pimples. If these impurities are allowed to remain, the system succumbs to any ordinary illness, and is unable to withstand the many ailments which are so prevalent during spring and summer.

Mrs. L. Gentile, 2004 Second Avenue, Seattle, Wash., says: "I was afflicted for a long time with pimples, which were very annoying, as they disfigured my face fearfully. After using many other remedies in vain, S. S. S. promptly and thoroughly cleaned my blood, and now I rejoice in a good complexion, which I never had before."

Capt. W. H. Dunlap, of the A. G. S.
R. R., Chattanooga. Tenn., writes:

"Several boils and carbuncles broke out upon me, causing great pain and annoyance. My blood seemed to be in a riotous condition, and nothing I took seemed to do any good. Six bottles of S. S. S. cured me completely and my blood has been perfectly pure ever since."

is the best blood remedy, because it is purely vegetable and is the only one that is absolutely free from potash and mercury, promptly purifies the blood and thoroughly cleanses the system, builds the general health and strength. It cures Scrofula, Eczema, Oancer, Rheum tism, Tetter, Boils, Sores, etc., by going direct to the cause of the trouble at forcing out all impure blood.

the boarding-house. Later, in a fight between a number of the strikers and the men from the Bunker Hill, one of the union men fired the initial shot of the strike. It was directed at a door behind which some of the working miners were believed to be in hiding. Tonight no attempt was made to interfere with the working force, and about eighty men went on duty when the shifts changed.

Sheriff Young arrived from Wallace today. Tonight armed men are on guard both at the Bunker Hill mine and the mill. They halt all comers and demand the countersign.

Wonders Accomplished in the Training of Parrots and Canaries.

their vocabularies to a surprising gree, and it is said that the range in gree, and it is said that the range and technique of singing canaries is vastly improved. Even the quality of the note produced by a given bird is modified, and it is claimed that actual beauty of tone can be taught—to a certain degree—to a bird that is not specially gifted by nature, in the same way that many people who possess only half the attributes of a really artistic vocalist many people who possess only half the attributes of a really artistic vocalist in a saved from utter failure by judicious tuition. The early training of the canaries is begun in tregular schools in Germany. The birds are usually taught in classes, and the instruction is given in the form of regular courses, according to a fixed system. In the finishing school in Paris the faculty is composed of several experienced teachers. The general plan of instruction in the bird classes is comparatively simple. The easiest and most effective way has been found to be the repetition at stated times of the song or speech which the birds are to learn, until they become pearfectly familiar with it. Much of the art in training a bird is said to lie in the skill of selecting a song or sentence, as the case may be, which will catch the bird's fancy, and interest it. When that is once done, the bird's attention is concentrated as much as possible on the subject of the lesson, to the exclusion of all others. The power of bird memories is a very uneven quality. Some birds require months, and even years, of training to acquire a single theme. Others, again, are of astonishing versatility. One bird of this up-to-date school, a parrot, can actually sing several verses from popular songs to pianoforte accompaniment. The remarkable point of the songs correctly, but also sings the melody in perfect tune at the same time.

"We will run you out of town, too," someone shouted, and one of the strikers struck him in the faces, The doctor stepped aside and was hot further molested.

The strikers then dispersed, and the non-union men were invited into a friendly saloon, and later returned to

True Merit in Pianos.

Fifty years should be an ordinary test for a piano—the Shoninger has been manufactured for a half a century. Now you want a good piano, in fact, the best, at a fair price— we have it. You may not be an art critic, but surely can rely on such artists as Wagner, Liszt and Rubinstein. Their praises for the Shoninger are: "Purity of tone sur-prising." "Great volume of tone." "Delights all musicians." "Among the best." We will be more than pleased to invite comparison. If true merit and quality are considered, you'll take our piano every If you buy wisely and frugaily, get a Shoninger, because you will get a strictly first-class piano at a less price than any other of equally high reputation. Easy payments and low prices sell our pianos. Musicians and their friends are welcome to make their headquarters at our store during the

An Omission That Caused Joy

Mrs. Rieger, of Kansas City, writes the following letter to a friend in Los Angeles:

"I received the package you sent me by express and alas! after all this long suspense, on opening it I found the bottle containing no directions, and I was at a loss to know how to go about the use of it. Both Eddie and Georgie have had the catarrh so badly, and mucus running from their noses continually. The most foul breath was theirs and l had tried everything. I opened the bottle and, being called out left it standing on the table. Upon my return I found both the boys had swallowed some of it. I judge about a table-spoonful each. It burned their throat and stomachs somewhat and they began spitting up mucus in large quantities I kept using it in small quantities until I heard from you. Well, the doctor te'ls us now that the boys have had catarrh of the stomach as well and con siderable ulceration. Less than a half bottle has stopped all their trouble given them a clean, sweet breath, and before you told me about the atomizer I made them sniff it up out of their hands. The stuff that came from their heads was something horrible to behold. Now it has all stopped and they have appetites like horses. I want you to go to that company there and tell them sure that it will cure the worst case of catarrh ever known. We use it for everything, It cured my rheumatism entirely. POPULAR STUDIES IN

EUROPBAN HISTORY.

III.-THE CRUSADES. By Dana C. Munro, M.A.

THE KINGDOM OF JERUSALEM. Godfrey died after ruling only a single . His brother, Baldwin of Edessa, chosen King. It is said that God-had refused to wear a crown of gold where our savior had worn a crown of thorns. Under Baldwin and

There were two parties. One had assimilated the Arab civilization and wished-to keep the peace with their neighbors. The other desired constant war. The latter was led by the Templars and Hospitallers, who existed mainly to fight the infideis and were averse to a policy of peace. Unfortunately the two orders quarreled constantly, and thus the fighting strength of the kingdom was divided.

The country needed a strong king, and at the most critical lime it was doomed to have as rulers, first a leper and then a child. The two parties in the kingdom intrigued and contended about the questions of alliance or war with the Mussulmans. A firm policy was necessary, as Islam was again becoming united. The strongest opponent the Christians were to meet was Saladin, who was fast rising into power. As yet he was engaged in subdaing his coreligionists. But one of the crusaders, tempted by plunder, broke the truce and pounced upon a caravan with which a sister of Saladin was traveling. The latter determined to destroy his faithless opponents. In a few weeks he had captured Jerusalem and many other places. He spared the inhabitants, setting an example which the Franks were too barbarous to follow.

THE THIRD CRUSADE.

For years the crusaders had been begging help from the West; but they had been too deeply distrusted to obtain it. The news of the fall of Jerusalem, however, spread consternation everywhere. Three great kings took the cross—Frederick Barbarossa of Germany. Philip Augustus of France and Richard of England. The German Emperor was drowned while on the way. Philip and Richard quarreled, so that they accomplished only the capture of Acre. This to English readers is the best known of the crusades. It is preëminently the crusade of romance, where two heroes, Saladin and Richard the Lion-Heavted, were opposed to each other. Saladin was the nobler character, but Richard was a fine type of the mediaeval knight. There were many picturesque incidents, but the crusade was of small importance. THE TWO MOTIVES.

Throughout the period there were two motives which made the continu-RICHARD I.

increased in extent by the conquest of one city after another. The Christians profited by the fact that their enemies were divided and constantly at strife with each other. New bands of crusaders came each year eager to strike a blow for the cress. But the advance was intermixtent, as the new bands stayed only a few months. In the winter the Christians were hardly numerous enough to hold what they had conquered.

The kingdom was wealthy; the natural resources of the country were considerable. But the great source of wealth was commerce. Syria again became to a great extent the distributing agent for the products of the East and West. Gradually, too, the crusaders in the Holy Land, through their commercial relations, learned to know the Arab civilization and to respect it. However bigoted they were, it was impossible for them to dwell gers. A new crusade was preached in Europe. Louis VII of France and Conrad III of Germany took the cross and led great armies to the Holy Land. This, "the second crusade," can be dismissed with only a few words. It was an entire failure. Some said the failure was due to bestifity evising between was due to hostility existing between amid a civilization vastly superior to their own and not to borrow from it. The borrowing appears first in matters of dress. It spread slowly, until the Franks in the East had created a culture half oriental, half western.

After forty years of slow advance the crusaders received a check. A great ruler arose among the Mohammedans—Imadeddin Zenki. He united most of the Mussulmans under his rule and was soon able to conquer Edessa.

wands gathered in two bands. There were boys and giris—nobles and peasants—under the leadership of boys. mingled in the throng were men and women of the baser sort. They marched southward—to the Mediterranean, believing that the Lord would open a way for them as He had done at the Red Sea. Some were decoyed and sold into slavery, many died, a few returned home. Those children and the older people who encouraged them illustrate the extreme to which religious fanaticism could lead. Frow their folly we can understand how powerful a motive religious devotion was.

The crusades to the holy land were continuous for two centuries. Hardly

The crusades to the holy land were continuous for two centuries. Hardly a year passed by without some expedition. The largest only are distinguished by numbers, of which the first four have been described. But it is necessary to remember that the crusades were continually going on, and men's minds were frequently directed to the holy land. Many went there more than once. the French and German armies. Others charged the Greek Emperor with treachery. Conrad III imputed the failure to the treachery of the crusaders. The last was generally believed and led to an unwillingness to undertake other crusades.

The kingdom had gained slightly by the crusade, as it diverted the enemies for a time. Zenki's death was a more positive benefit. Islam was again divided. The Christians needed only to use the favorable conditions with caution. But this they, did hot do; the phase of life, although some results kingdom was divided against itself.

in part at least to other causes. But in two points especially we can trace their influence—in the enrichment and education of the west. By their contact with the higher civilization at Constantiacopie, and in the east the crusaders learned much. Many new tastes were formed which could be gratified only by eastern products. Spices came into common—use. Articles of luxury were needed. On the other hand, the crusaders in the east had to be supplied with arms, horses and men. An active commerce arose between the east and west and between the different parts of Europe. The Italian-cities felt the impetus first. From them it spread to the Rhine cities and thence to all Western Europe. This commerce brought wealth in its train.

petus first. From them it spread to the Rhine cities and thence to all Western Europe. This commerce brought wealth in its train.

More important still was the Intellectual advance. "The roots of the renaissance are to be found in the civilization of the crusades." The intellectual horizon was broadened by the contact with new people and civilization. Prejudices against foreign usages lessened through the intercommunication of so many nations. The spirit of free inquiry was aroused. Native literatures grew up. In fact, the human mind was urged on to fresh conquests. There have been three great periods of advance in the history of Europe—the crusades, the reformation and the French revolution. Of these the first was not the least important.

Students' Notes.

(1.) No series of historical works published in recent years has been received with more favor, both by the critical scholar and by the general reader, than the "Story of the Nations' series (New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons; each, $1.50.) Every volume in the series is an original production prepared especially for the series by a scholar (or scholars) of admitted authority. Our readers, therefore, who may wish further information as to the crusades will find in Volume XLIII of this series (Archer & Kingsford) the best that is to be had.

(2.) We can almost equally highly commend to our students "The Crusades," by the Rev. G. W. Cox, in "Epochs of Modern History" series (Scribner's: $1.) There are, indeed, those who consider this little work the "best brief account of the crusades for general reading" yet published. Dr. Mombert's "Short History of the Crusades," (Appleton: $1.50; two maps) is well spoken of.

(3.) Michaud's "History of the Crusades," translated by W. Robson, with a preface and supplement by Hamilton W. Mable (Armstrons: Three volumes; $3) is generally considered the standard authority on the subject, but perhaps it is too comprehensive for most of our readers.

(4.) Students who are not able to have access to any of the works mentioned above will no doubt be able to get the reading of Hallam's "Middle Ages." which is, or ought to be, in every good circulating library. Hallam's style is a little dry, because he is so concise and so judicial; put no great writer of history has retained his reputation as a classic so little impaired by the assaults of critics and the investigations of more modern writers as he has. Chapter 1, part 1, of the work is the part taken up with our subject, and we cordially commend it to the more earnest-minded of our students.

(5.) Students who have read our historical course so far in any of the manuals specified will probably be ready for lighter treatments of the topics. "Passe Rose," by Arthur Sherburne Hardy, is a novel of the time of Charlemagne

(6.) Students was nave teach to total course so far in any of the manuals specified will probably be ready for lighter treatments of the topics. "Passe Rose," by Arthur Sherburne Hardy, is a novel of the time of Charlemagne that, with "its almost perfect literary art and its exquisite individualizing of character," critics can scarcely praise too highly. (Houghton, Mifflin & Co.; $1.25.)

(6.) The great heroes of the crusades where, so far as literature is concerned. Richard I of England, known as the "Lion Heart," and Philip II of France, known as Philip Augustus. Scott's "Ivanhoe." frequently judged to be his greatest work, is a perennially fresh account of life and manners in England of the time of the "third" crusade. Scott's "Talisman," though a less renowned work than "Ivanhoe" is nevertheless almost perfect as an historical novel, and is the best account in fiction yet written of that wonderful epoch of faith and energy and evil passion which we call "the crusades." In both the works Richard of the Lion Heart is a leading personage. G. P. R. James is an historical romance writer long since shelved by critics: but those who have had the good fortune to read his "Philip Augustus" in their youth never regret it. For a serious, account of Philip Augustus the student is referred to W. H. Hutton's monograph in "Foreign Statesmen" series (Macmillan: 75 cents.).

(7.) The "children crusade" was "one cents.)

(7.) The "children crusade" was "one of the strangest and most absurd spectacles recorded in history." For an interesting historical account of it see the book with the title "The Children's Crusade." by G. Z. Gray (Houghton, Mifflin & Co.: $1.50.)
Note.—The next study in the history course will be devoted to feudalism.

CHAPLAIN CLARK RESIGNS. Leaves Christ Church After Seven Years' Service.

Nearly two months ago Rev. Alfred S. Clark tendered his resignation as rector of Christ Church in the vestry of the congregation. At that time nothing was said about the matter, and Rev. Clark continued to occupy his pulpit. The resignation will take effect after next Sunday, and on that day he will preach his last sermon in the church, at past seven years.

The reason for Chaplain Clark's resignation is the desire on his part to secure a rest which he thinks is necessary for his health. The salary paid by the church is also smaller than the pastor desires. If he leaves the city, which is quite probable, he will sever his connection with the old Seventh Regiment. He has been chaplain of that command for several years, and served with it during its long season of waiting for active service during the Spanish-American war.

FUTURE OF THE PHILIPPINES.

A Washington dispatch quotes Cabinet officer as saying that the Cabinet has at no time discussed the subject of the future disposition of the Philippine Islands. This is, without doubt, an exactly true statement, literally and figuratively. The President, in his address before the Home Market Club at Boston, took substantially the same ground-that the future of the islands is a question to be decided in the future, and that the American people, in their collective capacity, must decide this question. It is not a question to be decided by the President, nor by the Cabinet, nor by any bureau or department of the government. It is a question which must be decided by the American people; and the public decision, under our form of government, must be rendered through Congress at the proper time.

"It is the present," said the Cabinet officer above referred to, "that we are thinking of, and there is not the slightest intention of deviating from the present programme. I believe it is the unanimous feeling of the Cabinet that nothing shall be decided as to the future status of the islands, until we have placed them satisfactorily under the control of the United States." He further said that the government would employ every dollar and every man necessary to bring the islands under the dominion of the United States, and that when the insurgents have recognized the power of the United States the question of their future status will be taken up and discussed.

This is precisely the position which has all along been insisted upon by those who are qualified to speak for the administration. As THE TIMES has frequently pointed out, there is but one living issue in connection with the Philippine problem at the present time, and that is the suppression of the armed insurrection and the restoration of peace and good or-While this issue remains undetermined, all other issues must wait. There can be no going backward, no withdrawal of our forces from the islands, until we have made American authority supreme throughout the archipelago, and have established conditions which will assure the safety of life and property. This is all there is to the "Philippine question," in its immediate aspects, and it is the imperative duty of every loyal Amerof his ability in the bringing about of unnecessary friction between the two these much-desired results.

The flippant and foolish chatter of Bryan, Hoar, Altgeld, and others, report that a German planter in Sa against what they are pleased to term "the policy of imperialism," may not, in a technical sense, be which several English and American treasonable, but it comes very near to being treasonable. Their criticisms of the administration are pre-Instead of endeavoring to embarrass the administration they should lend it their loyal aid in the present emergency leaving to the future the determination of questions which have no relevancy at the present time. These men are criticising a policy which has in fact no existence, and in doing so they are simply making themselves ridiculous. In their any, fety to make political capital, or to exploit their individual ideas, they are lending aid and comfort to the men who are arrayed in armed hostility to the flag of their country. If this be not actual treason, it comes so near to it that the line of demarcation is hardly perceptible.

We can settle the Philippine problem when we come to it. In the mean time, our first duty is to settle the Filipinos, and our brave boys in Luzon are doing that as fast and as effectively as could be expected under the circumstances.

Col. Fred Funston and his little band of Kansas heroes, in crawling across that broken bridge under the 'rebel fire, swimming ashore, and driving the Filipinos out of their own trenches at the point of the revolver, performed an act in every way as brave as that of Hobson and his heroes of the Merrimac adven-That Kansas regiment is entitled to be called the Rough Riders (or more properly, walkers) of the

If Spain is wise she will have her new navy well insured before she her and then, again, a war nowadays, with she all the formidable weapons of de-tions, is a far more terrible thing than it has been in the past. Another reason for believing that there is no danger of serious trouble between the United States and Germany on account of Samoa is the certainty that, in such case, Germany would have to deal with England, as well as with the United States, and seamen of the two countries having already fought shoulder to shoulder and shed their blood on the island. Germany will certainly think several times before precipitating a combat with the two greatest powers of the world, especially when those nations ask only what is just, and in accordance with treaty agreements. Meantime, conservative American citizens and conservative American papers should discourage, as much as possible, the publication and discussion of baseless rumors, which can only serve to breed ill-feeling between the United States and a country which has contributed so many ster ling citizens to our population, thousands of whom have sealed their loy-

The rescue of Cuba was long de-ferred, and the hand of the avenger was stayed until a large and promising part of the inhabitants of the island had been sacrificed upon the altar of liberty, by the potent action of creatures of the imagination. The arm of the rescuer was palsied through fear of terrible apparitions which arose like smoke from the mysterious bottle described in the 'Arabian Nights," and then assumed the attitude of "innocuous desuetude." Creatures of the imagination robbed our people of much of the credit they would have won had they but taken the inevitable step, for the emancipation of Cuba, before the recurrence of that awful chapter on reconcen-

When the pitiful cry of the Cubans fell upon the sympathetic ears of the American people, when the mother's blood was freely mingled with that of her tender babe, when the commissioned assassin pursued with devilish glee his awful work, when the fiend pursued the people with bloody sword and prepared human food for jackals and vultures there was a quick response, like that of Samuel of old: 'Here am I." Yet the creature of imagination, stalking forth like a specter of the night, replied: "Down, and despair came louder and louder from across the southern seas, the American patriots, those post-graduates of the school of liberty, reechoed the reply in stentorian tones: 'Here am I." But the sheeted form stretching forth its bony arm repeated the command: "Down, you liberty-loving dogs; down, I say!" When the moans of the slaughtered victims were reëchoed to us from across the broad Atlantic, there was a third response, louder and more emphatic than before: "Here am I." And again the dreadful form reiterated the warn-

"Begone, and disturb not the revel of death!" When the American people awaited, sword in hand, to avenge the foul butchery of those who were neither kith nor kin, the creatures of a distorted imagination suggested the payment of a large sum to redeem the tortured victims. And yet, long before, the wretched Cubans nad paid the awful ransom, the price of liberty, by large, Shylock-measures of warm, impoverished blood, and quivering flesh.

When Justice was crying out in the streets, when Mercy was tugging frantically at the heart strings of the American people, when hope was striving to illumine the pathway to liberty, the creatures of imagination rose up, like the witch of Endor, phantoms in horrible shape. Visions of yellow fever, swamp fever, smallevils rose up before the distorted imagination, and were magnified by the fervid appeals of weak-kneed marplots, masquerading in the robes of natriots. Yet when the supreme moment arrived, when our great commander-in-chief gave the order to advance, all of these hideous creatures of the imagination, with a shrill wail of despair, sank deep into the pool of oblivion. When the critical time arrived, when the agencies of rescue were ready for exertion, then the genius and strength of purpose of Shafter and Wheeler, of Wood and Roosevelt, with the valiant Rough Riders, of imperishable fame, were ready for the great exigency. As upon land, so upon sea; despite the warning of the "sheeted dead" the courage of Sampson and Schley, of Hobson and Powell, were fully equal to any emergency. When the Spanish fleet at Manila was awaiting an order to descend upon the Pacific Coast, the mighty genius of Dewey was a Godsend to our people, and the shattered hulks of a dozen Spanish cruisers, reposing at the bottom of the harbon at Manila, are silent yet eloquent exponents of the sublime skill, the de cision of character, and matchless energy of one to whom neither the phantom of sunken mines, nor the dreadful fate of the Maine could swerve from the pathway of duty and right action The same unfortunate conditions which prevailed in Cuba a year ago now confront us in the Philippines The scene of action is simply shifted from the West to the East Indies. Despite the frightful ogres raised by the fervid imagination, despite the woes of heat and mosquitoes, of fever and plague, of swamps and jungle filled with chained monsters, of "swamp angels," of awful rains and impassable roads, of myriads of savage Filipinos, bristling like porcupines with poisoned arrows and ter-rible assegias; despite even the Hancourage of the dread monarch, Agui-naldo, our brave troops in the Philippines have faltered not in the least All these dreaded obstacles to success simply electrified the fighting blood and dauntless spirits of men who inherited the courage and traditions of Washington and Prescott, of Putnam and Ethan Allen, of Grant and Sherman, of Lee and "Stonewall" Jackson, and served to add new and irresistible attractions to the coming show. Some of these men had expe rienced a bit of "unpleasantness" fore, way down in Dixie land. the creatures of imagination which stayed our hands when Cuba was bleeding most freely are still work trying to swerve us from the pathway of duty in the Philippines. 'Learned men," intoxicated with wisiom, are issuing grave and labored statements, fortified by copious extracts from ancient archives, to show that the subjugation of the unholy Filipinos is utterly impossible, that the emancipation of the islands surpasseth the power and wisdom of the united nations of the earth. Therefore, they adjure us, by the shades of our ancestors, to quit this wicked, wasteful war, to "accept amnesty" from the mighty Aguinaldo, before it is too late, to "retire with honor while we may," and leave the host of Europeans at Manila and elsewhere in the Philippines at the mercy of a band of bloodthirsty savages to whom murder and rapine are cardinal virtues. Those men who urge the immediate abandonment of the Philippines are wise in the schoolrooms, but unsufferable quacks in the arena of practical politics. Their labored efforts but serve to show that they have utterly failed to catch the spirit of American institutions, or to measure the in-herent qualities of the American people. They should be taught that the sturdy traits of our people are not explained in the musty tomes of ancient history. In their intemperate zeal they simply overreach the subject in hand. They forget, or have never learned, that difficulties, 'however great, serve but to stimulate the ambition, and redouble the energy of our citizens. The conquering spirit and the courage of the American peo ple increases in an inverse ratio with the augmentation of the difficulties to be overcome, all efforts of the wise men to the contrary, notwithstanding. The difficulties incident to the subjugation and settlement of the Philippines, as in the case of Cuba, will be but chaff before the marvelous genius and the indomitable energy of American manhood. The genius and energy which conquered America and made it a power second to none will never halt before an insignificant task like that which confronts us in the Philippines. The real difficulties in these islands are but phantoms onceived in the misty recesses of inner consciousnes

FOREST FIRES-A DRASTIC REMEDY. A copy, received from Washington of the report of the acting superin tendent of the Yosemite National Park, shows that much work has been done in that government reservation during the past year. The acting superintendent reports that he has had eleven men engaged as forest agents, for the purpose of dispelling trespassers. During the time they were in the field, from June 25 to September 1, they expelled from the park 189,550 sheep, 350 horses, 1000 cattle and captured twenty-seven firearms. ter September 1, a force of soldiers took the place of the civilian rangers and during September expelled 24,500 sheep from the park.

In addition to this work, there were numerous forest fires to contend with, some of which made great headway. The acting superintendent makes number of recommendations, some of which are of interest to other government reservations in California, outside of the Yosemite. He suggests that Congress should enact a law attaching a penalty for trespassing upon the national parks, and that some officer connected with the government of the park be given the same powers as are now vested in the United States commissioners, so that trials may be had as speedily as possible after the apprehension of the trespassers; that Congress should extinguish the titles which now subsist in individuals to lands within the park limits, and that the roads which have been constructed for the purpose of accommodating the general public who wish to visit the park, should be owned by the govern ment.

The acting superintendent then goe on to make the following remarkable suggestion in regard to the forest fires: "In the matter of the prevention of forest fires, from conversations had with old mountaineers, men who have lived in the Sierras since the fifties, who have been constant observers of the conditions there, and who are deeply interested in the preservation of the forests in the national parks, as well as the national reservations, I have concluded that the policy heretofore pursued by the government looking to the prevention of fires al together, is erroneous. Since the Yo-semite Park was established, great efforts have been made by each superi tendent to prevent fires altogether, and when they have started, to prevent their spread. The consequence of this is that the floors of the mountains and the valleys have become covered by decaying pine needles and cones and the leaves of the deciduous trees to a depth of from twelve to eighteen inches; in addition, many trees have fallen and are now decaying, and the whole mass is highly inflammable. whole mass is highly consequence is that when fires start under existing condition next to impossible to control them at all, and the trees in the track of a fire ration of the present policy, fires of curred almost every year in all parts of the forest—in fact, they were fre-quently set by the Indians, but there was so little accumulation on the ground that they were in a great mea-sure harmless, and did not in any sense retard the growth of the forest

"I therefore think it would be well to consider whether or not the policy of the government had not better be nd, instead of efforts to prevent file. a systematic burning not better be indulged. There is to be found now in the whole forest any tree of great magnitude which has not upon it the marks of fire, yet the trees have in no wise been seriously affected by these burnings.

It may be that this radical method might be a good one for the Yosemite Park, but we hope that the government will not think of adopting any such system for the forest reservations in California, in general, until they have made a thorough and careful examination of the facts. California is a long way from Washington, and it has happened, before this, that things have been done by officials there if, when you return to your several under an entire misapprehension of homes, you do not forget the fact the conditions which prevail in this section. Our people should, therefore, be on their guard, or the first thing they know there may come an order from the Department of the Interior to set fire to all the forests in the San Gabriel and San Bernardino ranges as a means of protecting them.

There is no question but that a majority of the members of the United States Senate would be glad to have Matthew S. Quay among them again, but the obstacles to their giving him seat are too many to be overcome

THE CITY OF THE ANGELS

Not Jerusalem, enthroned above, On jasper height and golden street, Where the cherubs fold their shining wings, Where the saints and martyrs meet.

Not the Greek Olympus, cloud-eashrined, With its sacred groves and dells, Where the mythic gods and graces dance Around the bright Castalian wells.

Our City of the Angels lies beneath
The bending heaven that hides these re of light; Her angels to a workday world belong, And wage on earth the battle for the right

And yet a heavenly Paradise she seems,

Her pepper's trailing ferns, her palm's b leaves, Her bright grevellia's clustered gold, The wealth of crimson bloom and ruddy Her pomegranate's glossy buds unfold.

But long in calm unconscious grace she slept, Until the angel spirit came, The touch divine, that raises man on high And crowns him with the angel's name. The fathers came; no lust of earthly gain

Had drawn them to this west But love of God and brotherho They taught unto the waiting land. For this, in humble mission homes to dwell

On ocean's foam they braved the storm good rage; On Mexic plains, the Aztec spear, Till, wandering through the desert's sand, They came and wisely builded here.

Their work is done, the mission belis sings Around the great All Father's throne Yet o'er the town they loved there linger

A potent charm, a magic spell, That no rude sounds of warring clans creeds

Should break upon her perfumed air,
That only love of God and love of man
Be breathed within her temples fair.

Noblesse oblige, and on her people rests
The burden of a noble name;
So keep it honored through the years to con
Embhazoned on the roll of fame.

To plant within her children's tender hearts
The love of right, the acorn of wrong,
The culture of the attributes divine,
That to angelic souls belong.

So shall her name no sad misnomer sound, But borne across each mountain, plain an sea.

Will ring aloud the stranger's glad refrain:

"Oh, still Los Angeles are ye."

[A. P. EARLY MORNING REPORT.]

CANON CITY (Colo.,) April 26.—The discovery has been made that some very successful coiners have been oprating inside the State penitentia here. The counterfeits made are silver dollars, and it is believed they are of a combination principally of babbit metal, which was used in setting the grating during the construction of the prison. It is supposed the coins were made in plaster of Paris molds. The coins were first detected by mer-

ALL ALONG THE LINE.

The wise man will see that the windows and doors of his home are securely fastened when he brings his, family down town today to see the greatest floral procession ever seen in Los Angeles, And if he has a building he will leave him loose in the yard. leave him loose in the yard.

San Diego, having become tired of waiting for the government to dredge a channel into the harbor there, has set Capt. Polhamus at work on the job, and he will probably soon have it done. There is promise of divine help for those who help themselves.

The San Bernardino Sun, after sputtering and spewing at this city and the Harbor Jubilee with all the animosity it can command, says "the Sun has no disposition to belittle the rogress that Los Angeles has made.' It is most gratifying that this city is thus permitted to live, after all.

The Fruit and Flower Festival, the proceeds of which are to be devoted to the establishment of a home in Southern California for the widows and orphans of Masons, is not only worthy of patronage, because of the purpose for which it is held, but will well research with the except of the experience. pay a visit on account of the excel-lence and beauty of the display.

The only thing that seems to be well established in connection with the growing mystery of Oak Knoll ranch in Passdena is that Starr's family is most greviously afflicted. The sus-pense of a situation like theirs is harder to bear than almost anything else. When one critically considered the two mooted theories of murder and voluntary disappearance, there is only one thing more difficult to accept than either-and that is the other.

An ancient and unique book has een brought to The Times office by I. S. Bentley, whose father owned it for many years. It is entitled "Microcosmos, a Little Description of a Great World," the first word being in Greek characters, and was printed at Oxford, Eng., in 1833. It is note-worthy that "Sracing" is a little to the control of the control ine" is given the first, and America the last place among the countries described. Naturally, the United States is not mentioned, though

Up to the time the Health Office was closed for the day yesterday, no suspected cases of smallpox had been reported and none expected. After Health Officer Powers had gone home he was notified of what was supposed to be a case at No. 836 Lyon street.

Going to that place he found an Italian woman about 50 years of age suffering from a well-developed case of confluent smallpox. She had been ill for some time, but had not sent for a physician until yesterday. She was at once removed to the City Hospital, and the other members of the family were vaccinated and placed under quarantine. No other persons beside the members of the family have been exposed to this case, and the exposure has been of such short duration that Health Officer Powers does not fear other cases sin the family.

Three patients were discharged from the hospital yesterday, having completely recovered from the disease, Including the case taken there last night, only five cases are under treatment.

SENATE WOULD NOT SEAT HIM, SAYS SENATOR PERKINS.

The Governor's Ill-timed Fling not Relished by the Senator, but No Retort Required, Considering Time and Place.

Senator Perkins was seen at San Pedro yesterday and asked his opinion of the attitude of the Senate on the appointment of Quay to that body by Gov. Stone of Pennsylvania and the appointment of Dan Burns from this State, should Gov. Gage decide to make it. He said:

"I can only give you my opinion, as eased on previous actions by the Senate in similar cases, and in my judgment the precedents established in the cases of Washington, Montana and Oregon will be followed. Of course, in cases where the Senator from a State dies or resigns it is the practice for the will be followed. Of course, in cases where the Senator from a State dies or resigns it is the practice for the Governor to appoint to fill the vacancy, and the Senate always recognizes such appointments as binding. But the theory is that when a Legislature fails to make an appointment, the fault lies with the State, and the appointee is not recognized as entitled to a seat in the Senate. When the case from Oregon came up in the Senate, I favored seating the appointee, because I felt that the circumstances were somewhat different than in the other cases. The Legislature of that State had failed to organize, and consequently did not, reach the matter of voting upon a Senator. But the Senate decided that the fault was in the State and refused to seat the appointee. I consider that a much stronger case than the appointment of Mr. Quay by Gov. Stone. I cannot see how the Senate can seat him without reversing its decision, and I consider the possible appointment of Mr. Burns in the same light.

"As a matter of fact, my opinion is that Gov. Stone had no idea that Mr. Quay would be given a seat in the Senate. He probably felt that the appointment would be in the nature of a compliment and a public recognition of his having been cleared from the serious charges which have been resting upon him."

It was evident that the Senator was smarting under the lash which Gov. Gage applied to him from the speakers stand at San Pedro yesterday. A number of his friends had been "jollying" him, and to these remarks he answered each time with a smile and a joke. When he was asked by a Times representative in regard to the matter, however, he said that he felt that the Governor's remarks were uncalled for, and while he had had a splendid opportunity to retailate, he felt that it would not be gentlemanly to do so, and he let the matter go by.

"As to Senators obeying the reuest of constitutents," said he, "they have a right to wrap heir authority about them if they choose and disregard the wishes of their constituents, but it seems to wharves' and cities, but God Almighty locates harbors," and smiling San Pe-dro represses "I told you so," but has known it all along; known it ever since that October day when Juan R. Ca-brillo, the original jubilator, rounded Dead Man's Island, crossed the bar and "found it a very good port." That was the first San Pedro Harbor Jubilee and was long ago, so far back that even the countless thousands you have that crossed the continent with and was long ago, so far back that even the countless thousands you have met that crossed the continent, with the Pathfinder are misty as to details. However, historians generally consider the lapse of memory, in this one instance, pardonable, for that Jubilee was 357 years ago come the 6th day of next October. The world was young then; the Atlantic Coast was unexplored, the site of the city of New York was undiscovered, the world revolved as it had since the beginning without recognizing the need of a "Hub," and up in San Francisco the tides still polished the pebbles on Montgomery street.

When that hardy navigator, Cabrillo, and his little band of adventurers salled from Tehuantepec with "Three cheers for Cabrillo And three for Spain, And three for spain, and three for spain, and three for the deepening blue," a brave man would have shrived himself before prophesying that their judgment as to what constitutes "a very good port" would be questioned by the Seuthern Pacific Raliroad of Kentucky, for that was before Spain had cencelved fear and her soldiers "Blessed the banner and kissed the cross, And died as brave Spanlards die," before Sir Francis Drake and his daring buccaneers harried this and the southern coast for craft homeward-bound with gold and jewels levied from the Incas and spice-laden galleons from far-away Cathay; before God had passed judgment on the flaunting red and orange of Castile and Aragon or manifested His divine wrath in the flashing, crashing thunder of his artillery, aided by the barkings of the irron-jawed buildogs of the British navy, frightening and scattering the invincible armada of Philip to the "four winds." Subsequent centuries prove the implacability of His displeasure, and down in the glistening sands on the southern shore of Cuba are twisted iron hulks and bleeching bones, more recent and prima facie evidence of the merciless swoop of es, more recent and prima facie evidence of the merciless swoop of God's vengeance. But Spain was—well, Spain, when Cabrillo turned his prows out into the unknown western sea for "God and the King," to out into the unknown western sea for "God and the King," to "Where the sea gods sat At the gathering of the gales."

Three days sail from Bahia de San Miguel (San Diego) they came to the Isla de San Salvador (Catalina,) "seven leagues distant from the mainland." They found the island inhabited by hostile natives whose smokes answered those of their brethren on the coast. All the way up from San Miguel these smokes had followed them as the watchers signaled for a gathering of the tribes to beat off those "great white birds bearing on their backs men with white faces." Yesterday San Pedro was again en fete, but the smoke that ascended from where Point Firmin lies "Like the paw of a couchant lion upon the green meadows of a peaceful sea" marked the signal fires of a welcoming feast for the host of invaders that descended on the harbor; a harbor that Cabrillo pronounced "a very good and safe port" 357 years ago, and San Pedro has waited through all those years against the time when the world should recognize the correctness of the judgment of that Portuguese navigator; but the welcome was none the less hearty, though so long delayed, as it was the intention to make it such as tradition has handed down since the time when every Southern California host received his guest with: "My house is yours, señor," and it was.

And the guests descended in squads, platoons, companies, regiments and brigades; on foot, on horseback, in carriages, wagons, railway coaches and steamers, and every conveyance was loaded not only to the guards but the "gun"; "The crowd comprised the brigades; on foot, on horseback, in carriages, wagons, railway coaches and steamers, and every conveyance was loaded flot only to the guards but the "gun"!s." The crowd comprised the whole gamut of life from the puling infant in arms to the white-haired great grandsire, who was here when First and Spring streets was a cowiot; when Banning's stage line was the only means of transportation to and from San Pedro, and when the only calls at the port were the semi-yearly visits of hide droghers or an occasional Yankee trader.

The half-hourly trains of ten and twelve coaches, on both the Terminal and Southern 'Pacific roads, were crowded until noon, even the 7:30 trains carried at least a thousand each, and a general estimate of the crowd at noon placed it anywhere between 15:000 and 20,000. The ease and rapidity with which the multitude was handled, without an accident, added greatly to the enjoyment and earned for the different managements general commendation. The steamers Hermosa and Faicon ferried passengers via the Terminal from the island to the mainland. On the verge of the bluff along the water front numerous photographers had planted their cameras, and as they turned their miniature batteries on the climbing hosts they were subjected to volleys of good-natured badinage and voluntary and impossible poses. On shore the crowd seemed at a loss at first to know the most important long point of immediate interest, but a mighty glance seaward took in the rock-laden barge and its tug consort, and the army beaded for Point Firmin. Only a few thousands were there in time for the

When the signal of President McKinley was received at Terminal station, Corporal Altman and Trooper Kennédy, detailed for that purpose, fired a dynamite bomb, which signal was repeated by Corporal Sebastian and Trooper Rodney on Polnt Firmin, and in answer to the last signal clouds of white steam bourgeoned from the tug, but long before the sound of the whistle reached the watching thousands the barge was seen to list to port and white spray dashing high in air was the signal for a ringing cheer which ran along the mile of living fringe on the bluff.

Then somebody said "barbecue," and the happy crowd trudged back again over the long mile to town, constantly meeting thousands of late arrivals who turned back with good-natured jests to reinforce the charge, in the feats the happy crowd trudged back again over the long mile to town, constantly meeting thousands of late arrivals who turned back with good-natured jests to reinforce the charge on the feast. Then began the few a rumurs of complaint; the programmes stated that the barbecue would be at Fourth and San Pedro streets, and, the universal and burning question was "where is Fourth and San Pedro street?" No one knew, for the residents of the town were lost, swallowed in the human vortex that surged and swirled through the streets on a voracious hunt for that "15,000 pounds of roast beef" and when it was learned that the feast was fully a mile and a half away, up hill and down dale, despair settled on a few, for the limited number of 'busses could not handle one-twentieth part of the guests even at the modest sum of "four bits" for the round trip. However, the multitude had the underhold on its good nature, and started on the long tramp, but many, especially women and children, gave it up and turned back. Someone tried to circulate the rumor that John T. Gaffey was responsible for the distance, the feast being on his ground, as he was "pulling off a sale of lots" yesterday, but the people were too patriotic and even-tempered to believe that any host, would be so sordid as to endeavor to work his guests in that manner. The fact is the crowd was partly responsible for the distance. From the bluff, where a majority witnessed the dumping of rock, across lots to the site of the barbecue was less than a mile, but no one seemed to be aware of the fact although a garrison flag on a sixty-foot staff and a detachment of F Company with a field piece were doing their best to attract the people's attention in that direction. In ignorance they tramped back over the mile base, then the mile and a half perpendicular of a right-angled triangle, whereby, owing to the topography of that locality, if they had followed the hypothenuse they would have saved more than half the distopography of that locality, if they had followed the hypothenuse they would have saved more than half the distance.

But once on the ground what a sight; it was the greatest thing of the kind ever held in California. Huge tables arranged in the form of a parallelogram, each side of which was 600 feet long and the ends 250 feet, making one table 1700 feet, one-third of a mile, long if placed end to end. Inside this parallelogram were the sixteen pits in which the beeves were rosted, the bean pots ten feet long five feet deep and four feet wide, with thirty-gallon coffee boilers everywhere. The endless table was covered with white muslin, and every eighteen inches on each side were placed knife, fork and spoon, tin cup and paper plate. The whole was inclosed by a barbed wire trocha, tight and strong, and well it was.

Down at the southwest corner just outside was the speakers' stand surrounded by thousands massed as closely as they could stand and those who could not get within hearing distance drifted hungrily to the farther end where two gates marked "entrance" in four-foot letters looked very inviting, but the way was barred by the big bluecoats built to stand a center rush, while all down the fence on either side tramped the men of Troop D to see that no one "crawled under the canvas." and Capt. Howland made frequent rounds to see that his men were standing firm against all piteous appeals. In front of each entrance a great mob was massed, and all around that five-acre field the people stood from four to a dozen deep, when the pits were uncovered and the rich odor of that barbecued beef drifted into and permeated through that crowd, well, a record of the remarks addressed to the carvers and small army of waifers would be interesting reading.

Some fellow half-way up the hill that rose like an amphitheater behind the tables had an old bugle, and every few moments he blew an improvised call. The crowd was not well up on the technique of bugle calls, but every one thought of course it meant "eat." and they surg tired of waiting, notwithstanding the efforts of Bandmaster Reynolds and the Third Regiment band at one end and Bandmaster Porter with the Catalina Band at the other.

The Barbecue Committee, with Don Marco Forster as chairman, assisted by Fred Harkness as general manager, and Superintendent J. Anderson, with Assistants Henry Brown and William Wilson, had the situation well in hand. Don Marco Forster: can any one re-Assistants Henry Brown and William Wilson, had the situation well in hand. Don Marco Forster; can any one remember of a barbecue event in Southern California without his presence? Why, they even send for him from San Diego, and at the last Cabrillo festival in that city it was Don Marco's Andalusian bull that gave the toreadors, picadors, capadors, bandileros et al. a fight for their money, chasing them behind the barricades over the fence and out.

hind the barricades over the fence and out.

At 12:15 the signal was given for the "first table." and what a rush! The blue line was swept away, and catching up their skirts women and girls went racing along with husbands, fathers, brothers or sweethearts in one wild jolly shout to see which could be the first at table, but the race was so enjoyable that vacant seats were passed in an effort to be first at the lower end of the field. When the tables were filled, which meant the seating of 2000 persons at one time, another signal was given, and after a herculean struggle the gates were again closed. The exits were at the end opposite to the entrances, and as soon as the tables were vacated the same scene was repeated until nearly fifteen thousand people had been fed, and there was enough left to fill the proverbial basket many times over.

As fast as they finished eating the

As fast as they finished eating, the people began the tramp back to town, and the cars and the scene resembled the famous pen pictures of an English Derby day, the tired, but jolly excursionists tossing about jest and repartee and the fortunate passengers in the few 'busses being subjected to endless good-natured "jollying." The first trainload returning left about 2:30, and from that on the trains were run as in the forenoon, with from ten to fourteen coaches.

The first load of rock to fall on the breakwater site was brought from the Catalina quarry early yesterday morning. The contractors obtained the rock at considerable inconvenience to themselves, because of the land machinery not being in position at the quarry. The weight of the load on the barge yesterday is unofficially estimated at 600 tons.

The tug Hercules towed the loaded barge to its position early yesterday morning, and moored it there, the tug going into the inner harbor and remaining till aout an hour before the time for discharging the barge. Contractor E. Heldmaler and General Superintendent J. W. Wyckoff went out in a launch and Assistant Superintendent J. S. Anunsen went out on the Hercules. That tug steamed to a position south of the barge, dropped anchor and passed a line to the bow of the barge. Then the tug with the aid of her auxiliary engines hauled in on the barge lay nearly north and south. The tug lay in the same line ahead of the barge, and kept the line nicely tightened so as to hold the barge in position.

A few minutes before 11 o'clock

The tug lay in the same line alread of the barge, and kept the line nicely tightened so as to hold the barge in position.

A few minutes before 11 o'clock Messrs. Heldmaier, Wyckoff and Anunsen went aboard the barge and the finishing touches in the arrangements for dumping were made. Just before 11 o'clock all the men on the scow withdrew from it except Assistant Superintendent Anunsen and Adolph Kahn, the latter being an expert swimmer, and a brother of Congressman Kahn of San Francisco. Mr. Heldmaier boarded the launch Catalina which stood off on the compartment side of the barge. Mr. Wyckoff boarded the Hercules and all waited for the signal to dump.

Two or three guns on the bluff booming in quick succession announced that President McKinley in his library at Washington had pressed the key which was to start the work on the great southland harbor three thousand miles distant. The water gates were opened and the barge commenced to tilt as the water rushed into its side compartments. The angle of inclination steadily increased for about two minutes. At the start the deck on that side had been two feet above the water line. Gradually the side sank into the seatill the deck for four of five feet from that edge was awash. Still the great mass of rock remained inert and the spectators began to think the test would be unsuccessful. Then there was a movement of rock on the compartment side, and as it began rolling, tumbling and splashing into the water sounded, hats and caps were waved, and the air was rent with cheers.

A mass of about one hundred tons on the lower side dropped off, and the dumping process was at a standstill. The barge righted slightly and remained in a tilted position: The rock which had dropped off had in part restored the equilibrium which had been disturbed by the opening of the water compartments, and the deck was inclined so little that no more of the load would slip off.

Soon after the test a force of men was set at work dumping rock by hand from the upper side so that the scow would tilt enough to dump what remained of the load. The men had worked most of the previous day and night getting the barge loaded at Catalina in time for the celebration, but they kept at the task choerfully. At noon Adam P. D. Meyer, in charge of the company's subsistence department, sent them a lunch, and after disposing of that they returned to the work with renewed vigor. Probably fifty tons of rock lying near the upper edge were dropped off by hand and with bars. That caused the barge to tilt over further, so that for five feet or more from the lower edge the deck was again awash. The bulk of the rock did not slide and a stream of water from the deck in an effort to make it slippery enough for the cargo to slide off. That scheme tid not accomplish the desired end, and a heavy line was made fast to a lot of the top rock and picked up by the tug Hercules. The tug gave several strong pulls from the lower side of the barge, but only a little of the rock was dislodged. That ended the efforts to remove the rock by mechanical means, and the men were put at work dropping it off a piece at a time. Mr. Heldmaier himself lent a hand with the others. The work was continued last evening and was probably finished by daylight.

the others. The work was continued last evening and was probably finished by daylight.

The barge which failed to completely dump yesterday is one of two which were recently constructed at Terminal Island by the contractors. It is 136 feet long, has thirty-six feet breadth of beam, and is ten feet from deck to keel. It draws two feet of water when empty, and about eight feet when loaded. The water compartments are on the starboard side, just underneath the deck. There are four of them. and each is 6x7½x24 feet. Each of the compartments has a large gate opening through the side of the barge. It was expected that when the gates were opened the harge would, because of the added weight on the compartment side, tilt so the rock would slip off. The discharge of the rock would lighten the barge so the water line would be below the bottoms of the compartments. That would allow the water, to run out of the compartments. The gates could then be closed, and the barge would be ready for another load. The deck was made with a protective covering of lightweight railroad metal laid crosswise at intervals of sixteen inches, and with the space between filled with oak plank, thin enough so it would not be dush with the railroad iron. That would allow the rock to slip along lengthwise on the iron without wearing lengthwise on the iron without wearing the deck. The dusping device was never practically tested till yesterday, but computations were made from which it was thought the exact operating force of the device could be predicted.

Contractor Heldmaler said after the test that the action of the device had been as he expected in nearly every particular. It sometimes happened, however, that a thing would not be correctly estimated on all points beforehand, and that had been a fact in this case. He had expected that the device would fall off together. In planning the barge he hought there had not been sufficient allowance of water-compartment side. He held expected that the whole mass of rock would fall off together. In planning and a proportionally larger water compartment, the angle of inclination when the compartments were flooded would doubtless be greater. Apparently the only limit as to top-heaviness is the degree handle has been a barge would be in danger, of losing its load while in tow from the quarry. But when a loaded barge is in tow the compartments are not flooded so, judging from yesterday's experiment, it is apparently safe to say that a barge may be built so that when loaded it may be much more top-heavy than the one used yesterday without danger of losing its load when in tow.

riages were provided for the specially invited guests, the speakers and the Executive Committee, and those who chose could get accommodations in public conveyances.

The site selected for the speaking, while quite remote from the depots, was admirably adapted to giving the multitudes an object lesson in the importance of the occasion, for spread before them was the pretty bay, the protecting mainland, the wind-breaking islands and the site of the breaking of the possibilities of the harbor which could have been obtained from no other site.

It was 11 o'clock when the exercises opened, at the signal of the booming cannon, indicating that President Mc-Kinley had pressed the electric button in Washington to inaugurate the beginning of work. For an hour the tround, though it was another hour before the great audience had reached its full magnitude.

From the speakers' stand a panorama of faces was presented which covered acres of ground, and, beyond, the surging crowd could be seen, plying back and forth between the stand and the entrance to the feasting place, as though indecisive as to the alluring rival charms of the tables and the eloquence. For some time these rivals stood equal masters of the occasion, but at last the gates of the barbecue ground were thrown open to the people, and there was no indecision with thousands. A rush took place for the tables, which at one time threatened to depopulate the section about the stand. This reached its maximum inst before Hon. Will A. Herris was introduced. The penetrating voice of this speaker, however, reached out over the wide expanse of territory and changed the tide of territory and changed the tide of the policy of the penetrating voice humanity, the speaker closing as it had begun, with countless thousands within hearing.

Chairman Charles Cassat Davis called the assembly to order and introduced the respective speakers, each with a befitting complimentary remark. These speakers were ranged on the stand with the Executive Committee and the specially invited guests.
Gov. Gage was the first speaker introduced, his remarks being as follows:

GOV. HENRY T. GAGE.

"I am pleased to greet so large a number of my fellow-citizens, who ere gathered here today to celebrate, by public jubilee, the material progress of the work of improvement upon the deep-sea harbor of San Pedro.

"Commerce demands from nations for their full development ocean communication as well as overland railways, and to encourage commerce the deep-sea carriers require that safe and convenient havens be maintained.

"On account of the many and varied industries and products of this southern portion of our State; the proximity of our territory to the fertile soil of Mexico; the lately-annexed Sandwich Islands, almost in a direct ocean line westward from San Pedro; the Philippine possessions ceded by Spain, and over which now floats, and over which forever ought to float, the victorious American flag, and the prospect of an early opening of the interoceanic canal at Nicaragua, affording an eastern outlet to our trade incident to our newly-acquired territory in the Far West, we may well be assured of a great commercial future for Southern California.

"The corner-stone of commerce of this part of the State is now auspiciously laid by the actual work of this harbor improvement for which you have so long and anxiously waited.

"The this hour of your jubilee, expressive of your struggle for a deep-sea harbor, it affords me the highest gratification as your fellow-citizen to greet here today that able, honorable, independent and distinguished gentleman, Hon. Stephen M. White (lately our Senator in Congress) and to add my tribute of respect to the ability, energy and labors which he unselfishly bestowed in our behalf, and which culminated in the selection by the national government of this splendid bay as a place for a great soutdern port. Senator White, an ideal public servant, was fully awake to your need for this harbor, and he therefore always readily responded to your just and earnest appeal.

"While you have many friends in Congress, among them S

"While you have many friends in Congress, among them Senator Perkins, who gave such aid as they could to this grand plan of harbor improvement, yet in the Senate from this State you especially had that other representative prevalously mentioned, who above all, was your able and unselfish champion, and whose honor and sense of duty required no such stimulus to his action, nor balm to his conscience, as a newspaper edict or legislative resolution.

"It needs no seer's vision to predict the wonderful advantages which must eventually flow to our farmers, fruit-growers, workmen, merchants and tradesmen from the completion of this great work now happily in progress. An unrestricted ocean highway from this port north, south and west will invite to these shores in exchange for our commodities the surplus wealth of the north, the riches of the Orient and the exuberant products of the ropics.

factories and industries and the reclammation and cultivation of our arid lands.

"To those of us who have watched the growth of this country from a stock range and a small group of scattered villages to highly cultivated farms, magnificent orchards, studded here and there with busy towns and populous cities, it is not too much now to expect, even in our lifetime, that this little city of San Pedro will, with the progress of trade, blossom into an industrial metropolis, and a great storehouse and extensive shipping point for the products of Southern California, and with this expectation I express my sincere wisb that you who share to-day in this jublie may all live to behold that prospeçous and joyous era."

The reference by the Governor to Senator White as not requiring such stimulus as a newspaper edict or legislative resolution, was rather resented by the friends of Senator Perkins, who understood the words to be a slap at him, and this was probably the only discordant note in all the speech making on the grounds.

"Fellow-cltizens: Great military triumphs have in all age, sometimes justly, sometimes without reason, been succeeded by elaborate displays and long and loud applause, including the many forms through which men have exhibited their enthusiastic satisfaction—their indescribable delight. Not only did the conquerors of antiquity rejoice in this way, but we find that our present able Governor has declared a holiday that we may fittingly call the world's attention and that of posterity to the magnitude and splendor of the achievement of Dewey and his gallant efficers and men—heroes who consecrated to deathless fame the battle of Manila Bay. But however majestic these achievements, yet in numerous instances many of their incidents are susceptible of justification only in so far as they have been essential to promote civilization, to defend it from direct encroachment. No one fails to regret the loss of life and property which war involves, the sacrifices and sorrows thus begotten. It is for fhis reason that a mere whim or momentary desire for conquest cannot be the basis of rational approval, but that, as I have said, there must be something victuous in the commencement and beneficial in the product. We are here to celebrate the commencement of a work, destined to last, when we and ours are gone—the benefits of which only one endowed with prophesy by divinity can for a moment attempt to enumerate. I refer to the building of the San Pedro breakwater by the government. The undertaking is certain to culminate in a harbor not only fitted for local commerce or coastwise trade, but also suited to the needs of all merchant vessels, and to our warships and those of friendly powers, plying in these waters needing for the time being a haven where they may ride without fear. Nor is this all: The United States has made giant strides in her foreign trade.

"The excess of exports over imports in 1893 was about one hundred million dollars. This was considered a most promising indication, and excited general satisfaction in mercantile circles; but the excess of exports for the twelve months ending December, 1898, was $621,260,535. The Birmingham Daily Mail of January 3, 1899, declares in America we have to compete with a country of unlimited natural resources. Nothing could be more remarkable than the statistics of the recent exports of American merchandise. The United States now ranks a good second among the exporting nations. What the approaching century has in store for her can only be approximately guessed. As a producer of iron and steel she is already beating everybody. The enormous contracts for steel which have gone to the United States lately from all parts of the world tell their own tale. Moreover, she is sending nuts and bolts to Birmingham and neighborhood at a price which would enable merchants to buy them and reexport them at a profit to other countries. Then we are told that a big trade is springing up in American bedsteads. This was a trade in which Birmingham at one time had the practical monopoly."

steads. This was a trade in which Birmingham at one time had the practical monopoly.

"A very significant statement is contained in the last consular report (April, 1899,) emanating from our Consul. Mr. Halsted, and which ought not to be without consolation to our rail-road friends here; which is as follows: In the news columns of the Mail the statement appears that the freight from Pittsburgh to Boston, 400 miles, was the same as from Liverpool to Birmingham, some ninety-seven miles. Upon investigation, I find in the same periodical contribution that as far as the commodity in question is concerned the freight charges from Pittsburgh to Boston amounted to about $2.50 per ton. The ocean charges about the same, and from the English port of entry to Birmingham about the same, and from the English port of entry to Birmingham about the same, and from the tentire cost of transmission from Pittsburgh to Boston, across the Atlantic, and thence to Birmingham. It is useful to study these figures.'

to Birmingham. It is useful to study these figures."
"In the report made by the Craighill Board allusion was made to the result of the possible construction of the deep-water harbor as follows:
"By far the most important aspect of this subject, however, is its relation to the probable future development of the deep-sea commerce of the country. Heretofore the Asiatic trade has naturally gone to San Francisco, but it the deep-sea commerce of the country. Heretofore the Asiatic trade has naturally gone to San Francisco, but it has been pointed out that the construction of the Canadian and Northern Pacific railroads has introduced two competitors for the overland transportation of the Asiatic commerce. Two through lines, the Southern Pacific and the Santa Fé systems, cross the continent from Los Angeles at much lower elevations than the northern lines, and also connect the Pacific with the Gulf of Mexico, and their operation is never obstructed by snow or ice. If a safe, accessible, and convenient harbor for deep-draft véssels existed on the southern coast these would appear to be the most favorable lines for the transportation of Asiatic and Australian commerce.

"Should the Nicaragua. Canal becompleted the importance of the proposed harbor will become still greater. At and Australian commerce.

"Should the Nicaragua Canal becompleted the importance of the proposed harbor will become still greater. At the present time the most convenient course for sailing vessels coming around the Horn is to go out into the mid-Pacific and strike the trade winds to make the port of San Francisco. With the completion of the canal, commerce will be principally transported by steam vessels of moderate draft, which will move north along the coast and seek, the nearest favorable and convenient port from which their freight can reach its market.

"A deep-water harbor on the southern coast would thus receive the Asiatic and Australian freights for shipment over the most favorable transcontinental lines, accommodate a large part of the commerce passing through the Nicaragua Canal which now goes around the Horn, and finally furnish a port of shipment and supply not only for the productive territory in its immediate vicinity, but also for the great interior plateau reached by the southern railways beyond the mountain ranges. Considering, therefore, the probable needs of commerce in the near future, the board is of the opinion that the proposed deep-water harbor is of high national importance and well worthy of construction by the general government."

"These suggestions evince the importance of an improvement heretofore manifested, which signifies duty done. Los Angeles is now practically united as to this harbor. Many times the efforts of our best citizens have been negatived and destroyed because of our uncertainty. The extreme East and the South maintain supremacy, for the people are devoted to each other, and in the cause of the several sections to which they belong. In party contention, in the efforts of in party contention, in the efforts of this man and that to win renown are found some of the reasons for our sofferings; the accountability for our woes. Devotion to the truth we all profess, but do we follow such an even ideal. Have we ever made the announcement that we will support and defend faithful public officers? My experience—not personally—but as a matter of investigation, is that we are prompt to detect defects in those who are honest, and slow to censure folly in the unjust. The ribald jests of those mailed in irresponsibility will not for a minute, or at all, influence sensible men, yet the able, truthful will ever pay the debt contracted by hyprocrisy and inaninity. There is another feature of this magnificent outpouring which cannot be allowed to pass unnoticed. I refer to the exhibition of the sentiment which is here so strikingly manifested. We have no captive triumphal trains; we enjoy enormous trade balances. We glory in no Roman show whose manacled men and women graced a barbarian holiday—the one to be the food of beasts—the other the toy of men. Our best victories are those of peace. "This harbor improvement means progress, the weakening of ties of serf-dom, the solving of those many intricate issues affecting our vitality, and upon the solution of which has depended many a public affair.

"Without reference to party we must stand by our flag. Grievous error may attend the domination of this party or that, but the most obvious trouble lles in our failure to meet the forms of eternal truth which literior motives vainly seek to hide under the evolutionary tendencies of the hour. The struggle for popularity; the hope to escape indictment and win applause seem to be the dominating elements of the moment. Whatever may be the accepted thesis of the time; whatever may be the considered as the oredominating tenet of the moment, it is indisputable that we can never rise to greatness unless we have some evidence indicating the permanency of our exertions.

Ever reproduced, it seems to me. is the story of Adam's race contentious, struggling, differing, striving, moving, hoping, uncertain and aspiring are some of us or manyof us, or maybe all of us, day by day and hour by hour. The Americanism to which we belong looks upward and tends onward, onward, forever onward—sighting for better things and struggling for attainment. Man, in child-hood's moment, pants for that glory which is the fruit of truth, for that knowledge which is its light. The acquirement of those desirable objects toward which ambition tends constitute the blossoming of laudable desire. The honor and genius which seek truth and regard it, are ever deemed commendable. They belong to neither race hor creed nor party. They are revered everywhere. The man or the set of men who dety a public sentiment based upon right, will suffer. The individual who follows his conscience will not be a victim, but he who plays to the galleries without a vlew personally credited, faithfully regarded, can have no comfort or hope of attainment of ambition. A child tossed upon the bubbles of the sea is not more variant in movement than is the man who deserts his conscience and seeks solution of his troubles in transitory Sentiment. The victim of pride and passion is not a safe guardian of the public interest. The man who knows the truth and sorns those who contest it deserves our commendation. The man who knows the truth and scorns those who contest it deserves our commendation. He can never be the advocate of unreasoning and exclusive privilege; the mere creature of money; the product of error. He must be a man.

"This monument whose cornerstone has just been laid is based on truth, it is not erected to perpetuate wrong. While conceived in labor it represents only truth, honesty and honor. It suggests the power of the people; it rises because of the people will. The dazziling beauties of money—the allurements of millions have not obscured the vision of our engineer corps, and should not impair our sight.

"This great improvement must result in increased affluence. Such constructions strengthen, beautify. Intelligent effort has matured beyond our dreams all over California. The arid country has been the scene of honest and painstaking and successful endeavor. The hacenda has vanished the town has arisen: the city is approaching. The mighty grizzly lord of the forest and the blain has been driven to his utmost fastness. There with stolid determination he awaits the annihilation of his species—victims to man; sacrifices under the car of remorseless progress, Anglo-Saxon development may be cruel, but its evolutionary tendency is as remorseless as the grinding of the glacler.

"Once over these plains great herds of cattle roamed. They are gone; the needs of the hour obliterated them. The orange, the vine, the temon, the blossoming rose, the pink, the white illy and the creeping vine together with innumerable other manifestations of horticulture, viticulture and agricultural manifestations, attest the virtue and peculiarity of our soil and climate. That to some extent we have profited by the opportunities thus afforded will. I trust, be admitted. Many of us have personally witnessed these and kindred mutations.

"Some may consider what we are saying to be little more than poetic fancy—the dream of a disordered mind—the product of seductive scenes. But it is very well understood here and is a fact absolute and truthful that there is nothing overpainted in my utergraphes. GEORGE S. PATTON.

President Cline introduced George S.
Patton, who said in part: "I am in a position to thoroughly enjoy being present at the beginning of work on the new harbor at San Pedro. All that has been said by those who have preceded me, in reference to the noble work done by your Congressional representatives, is more than true, yet they alone would have been powerless. Had it not been for the popular aid of an enthused public, their efforts would have been availless. This must be a lesson to us. There is one power in the country to which all else must bow. It is the determination of an aroused public.

"Our celebration today is a memorable occasion, and we may well take hope of heart, When the work on the new harbor is completed our holiday will be a national one, and when the city of San Pedro has stretched out to cover the surrounding hills it will indeed be a free harbor for a free people."

Gibbon, Senator Boyce, and Secretary Myles of the Santa Barbara Chamber of Commerce. All of those who spoke were enthusiastic in praise of the success of the Jubilee and they talked of the prospects of Southern California in general and Los Angeles in particular. The speeches made by these men were characteristic, in as much as they were not talking to a large audlence, but, as business men, were discussing questions of vital interest to almost all of those who were present. Attorney Gibbon said that now more than ever was it apparent that the time was riped for the completion of arrangements for building the railroad from Sait Lake City to Los Angeles. He referred to the almost insurmountable obstacles which had confronted the people of Southern California, teaching them that nothing was impossible. Upon the arrival of the train in Los Angeles the guests were escorted to their respective hotels and the members of them stisted that the first day's celebration of the Jubilee had been a grand success.

It is safe to say that there was not a vacant building nor room in the business district of the little city yesterday. Every available space had been taken by some one or other who anticipated a profit from the gala day celebration. Few of them were disappointed. In addition to the fakirs there were hundreds of persons engaged in illegitimate enterprises, whereby they took in numerous dollars from a hungry or thirsty crowd. Women to the number of more than a dozen opened as many sandwich booths where they also sold coffee and other food and drink. These were well patronized, in spite of the barbecus where the multitude was fed.

The main road, leading from the business center of the town to the ground where the barbecue and literary exercises took place, was lined on either side with stands of venders of innumerable articles, and a man with money could purchase anything from a town lot to a plug of tobacco. One Mexican vender of peanuts cried his voice to a whisper, calling out: "Hot peanuts, 5 a bag, or two for 10 cents." His inducement to prospective purchasers to buy more than one sack of his wares tempted few, and although by far the larger majority of his sales were 5-cent ones, he took in a good many dollars.

Carts, carriages, cabs, hacks, farm wagons, hay racks and, in fact, innumerable kinds of vehicles were pulled by horses, mules and donkeys, Everybody seemed out for a good time and a picnic and they certainly had it.

There was a commendable absence of rowdyism and intoxicants.

Comment on the excellence of the spread was unanimous, as one good old mother said, "it is just as good as can be," and when she saw where the meat was cooked she gazed at the chefs in awe.

Returning diners at the barbecue who stopped at the animatoscope of the "Battle of San Juan Hill" said it wasn't a circumstance to the charge from which they had emerged.

Some of the police can now sympathize with a center that has been broken by a flying wedge.

Mounted marshals had no end of fun chasing those who broke the guard line and were "footting it featly" for the nearest vacancies at the tables. Generally the crowd was an orderly one. There were some petty malefactors, and by night a sufficient number of them were gathered in by the peace officers so that the little San Pedro Jail was filled and a box car was used as an annex.

Capt, C. F. Swan of the contractors' tug Hercules gave important testimony before the Walker Deep-sea Harbor Board in favor of San Pedro. In a communication to that body he showed the inconsistency of the Huntington people's contention as to the quality of the holding ground in San Pedro Bay, and also furnished important evidence on several other points.

A large quantity of meat and other edibles, which were unused after the barbecue, were sent to the Associated Charities of Los Angeles.

When the last train from San Pedro for Los Angeles left the coast town last evening, several hundred Angeleños were left behind. Many of them ran after the train waving their hands, but they were compelled to stay in San Pedro over night.

Asked regarding Arizona, His Excellency said: "Arizona is extremely prosperous because of the good cropy and the good markets and the boom in copper. The territory has many good copper properties, one of which is the largest and most valuable in the known world. The drought in California has helped us because we have been paid higher prices for our hay and other crops in consequence. We think that we are qualified for self-government, and it is the universal wish of our people that we be admitted to Statehood.

THAT COPPER COMBINE.

King" Daly Says He Hasn't Heard of it as Being Consummated.
[ASSOCIATED PRESS-DAY REPORT.]

(ASSOCIATED PRESS-DAY REPORT.)
CHICAGO, April 26.—Marcus Daly, the Montana copper king, is at the Auditorium Hotel, having arrived from New York, where he has been for several weeks. When asked about the copper combine he gave it to be understood that the Anaconda property had not been secured and professed to have no knowledge that the trust had been consumated.

"I heard of this talk in New York on Saturday," he said, "and made in-quiries among some people whom I quiries among some people whom I thought would know something about it if the deal had been made there, but none of them knew anything more than I did. It may be that something was done in New York yesterday, as the advance in stocks seems to indicate, but if so, I have received no definite knowledge to that effect."

"You think you would be apt to hear if anything had been accomplished?" he was asked.

"Well, yes, I think I should, before the scheme can be said to have been consummated, the combine will have to deal with me. The talk of a capitalization of $500,000,000 is nonsense. That is a greatly exaggerated figure. It would sirrply be impossible to make fair earnings on such a capitalization."

terest in any copper consolidation, a member of the firm of Lewisohn Brothers said:

"We are not in a position to talk about consolidation of other interests. We do not know of a consolidation such as is talked of, but an endeavor is under way to unite certain properties. I have no idea of a $400,000,000 consolidation. Cut off a cipher and you bring the affair into the range of probability. Something is doing, however, to unite some copper companies and something may come of it. The present run of an immense consolidation may have its origin in investments by H. H. Rogers of the Standard Oil Company. He is a good judge of securities and properties and has put money in copper and is, I learn, in the Anaconda Copper Mining Company."
Rogers is out of town and no one in the offices of the Standard Oil Company would discuss its relations with promoters of copper consolidation. James B. Haggin, president of the Anaconda Copper Mining Company recused to talk on the subject.

At the office of Guggenheimer, Uncermyer & Marshall, who have practically a monopoly of the copper deals, the $400,000,000 consolidation story was lenied, but without comment because if the absence of Samuel Untermyer, who has managed all of the incorporations of copper companies for the firm. No corroboration of the story was had at Ladenburg, Thalman & Co.'s or frem J. P. Morgan & Co.

TRYING TO HELP A. J. WILMS.

EGATION OF WOMEN CALL ON DISTRICT ATTORNEY.

culiar Result of a Prosecution for arglary at Covina—Attorneys Admitted to Practice—Ortega-Perez Elopement.

In order to reduce the expenses of the city a suggestion has been made by a special committee of the Council that all the city officials, heads of departments and members of the Council as well, donate 10 per cent. of their salaries to the city for the next two months. What the response will be will not be known until the committee reports at a special meeting of the Council to be men employed in the several depart-ments of the city is to be recommended to the Council to reduce the expenses until the beginning of the next fiscal year. Hand street sweeping is to be discontinued until July 1, and the other street force is to be reduced to what extent has not been decided.

The petition for a reduction in tele-tone rates will probably not be pre-meted to the Council now that it has seen discovered that the motives of sented to the Council now that it has, been discovered that the motives of the persons who are behind it are not altogether unselfish. Under the circumstances the Council would almost certainly file such a petition.

The examination of Antonio Ortega before Justice James on the charge of rape has resulted in the defendant being head to answer. The fact of Ortega having eloped from Alhambra with Susanna Perez was shown, and the estance of the technical crime was concaded by the girl. But she did not know her own age, and the only testimony offered on that point was the mare word of the father, who stated that she was not quite 14.

The father and mother of young Mrs. Wilms were the most eager witnesses for the prosecution against Arthur J. Wilms, at his recent trial for having put his wife in a house of prostitution, but their feelings have undergone a change. Now Mrs. Kennedy, the girl's nother, and the mother of the dependant, have headed a delegation of laddes who visited the District Attorney's office for the purpose of interceding for Wilms, with a view to having his case dismissed.

ceding for Wilms, with a view to having his case dismissed.

A. burglary examination came to naught at Covina for a rather peculiar reason. Since the arrest of the defendant the prosecuting witness had suffered arrest for selling liquor without a license, and as he could not testify against the defendant on the burglary charge without imperiling his own chance of clearance in the liquor case, he forgot all that was pertinent to the prosecution.

TAT THE CITY HALL,

CUT OF TEN PER CENT.

OFFICERS ASKED TO HELP REDUCE EXPENSES.

Voluntary Reduction of Salaries Suggested by the Retrenchment Committee—The Telephone Petition Probably Killed-Receipts.

The work of the special committee of the City Council appointed to devise ways and means to secure additional revenue for the city, and reduce expenses for the next two months was considered of such importance and necessitated so much labor that the bers had no time to participate in the harbor festivities yesterday. In-stead they spent the day in the City Hall working, but did not complete their report, which will be made to the Council Friday afternoon.

The committee has made a proposition to the heads of the several departments that each of the city officers donate 10 per cent. of their pay to the city for the next two months. As the salaries of the elective officers are fixed by charter it is impossible for the Council to reduce them, and therefore unless the reduction is consented to by the incumbents of offices it can not be made.

The plans of the committee for cut-ting expenses have not been completed but they include the reduction of the street force, including all the hand sweepers and possibly half the street laborers.

was a marked decrease in the There was a marked decrease in the number of tax payments yesterday, not more than $1000 being collected. There is now available for apportionment only about $8000 and this will be held until it reaches $10,000. An apportionment of that amount will put the cash fund on the balance side of the ledger with a slight margin, but when next month's demands begin coming in the balance will again disappear.

MAY NOT PRESENT IT.

Telephone Petition Would Receive Little if Any Support.

It is now probable that the petition which has been circulated by persons interested in a scheme to make money for themselves out of what they con-sidered a possibility of securing a re-duction in telephone rates, will never be presented to the Council. The scheme was all right so long as it could be kept quiet and so long as the joker in it was not discovered, but now that the facts are known its promoters realize that they have but little to hope the petition asking that the telephone rates be reduced, and just how many of these signers also signed the little contract in which they promised to pay those circulating the petition for their trouble is known only to those who have the contracts. The wording of the contracts is such as to make them binding even if the telephone company should voluntarily reduce its rates just now.

That the petition would not meet with favorable consideration at the hands of the members of the Council is now certain because those members feel that they could not afford to have even a suspicion that they were supporting such a deal.

when the Third street tunnel is completed there will be a portion of that street above the east entrance to the tunnel and between that and the top of the hill at Olive street which cannot be used as a street. Conneilment not be used as a street. Councilman Vetter has suggested that this spot be given over to the park department to be beautified in much the same manner as are the terraces at the entrance to Elysian Park. The cost of such an improvement would be very small, and its maintenance would result in practically no expense to the city.

was more daily mixed by that hat been at first thought. It developed, however, that Susanna also was a daughter of the old man by a previous wife, and there being no blood relationship between Antonio and Susanna, that tangle was not added to the complications. A young Mexican testified that on Tuesday last Antonio asked him to get a buggy for him, and he did so and drove both of them over to Pasadena. The witness stated that he picked them up in the road in front of the Perez place, and they reached-pasadena about 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The witness said that he had heard that the parties were going to get married about two weeks before he drove them to Pasadena. The Sefiora Orchol, who keeps a saloon at Alhambra, testified that Ortega had told her that he was going to marry the girl and that if her people would not allow him, he intended to elope with her.

marry the girl and that if her people would not allow him, he intended to elope with her.

One José Duarte, a saloon-keeper at San Gabriel, stated that on Sunday, April 16. Antonio visited him and wanted him to accompany him to Los Angeles to get a marriage license. The witness said that he told his friend that he could not get a license, as the girl was under age. Next day, however, Antonio returned and showed witness a paper which he said he had received from the County Clerk (in cupid's department) for the Señor Perez to sign, and he asked the witness if he would not go with the Justice of the Peace and help to persuade the old man to sign the consent. At that time, too, according to the witness, Antonio stated that if the old man would not consent he would take the girl and marry her anyway.

The last and most important witness of all was the young senorita, most concerned, Susanna Perez herself. She was a quite modest-appearing girl of about 16 years, accepting her looks as an indication, and gave her testimony in English. She said that she did not know her age, but had known Antonio for about ten years. She conceded she had joined with him in that memorable buggy ride to South Pasadena, where they took the electric car for the city. Upon arriving in Los Angeles they went to a hotel, but she could not remember its usine or where it was located, as she did not know the city well.

tega to answer the charge of rape in the Superior Court, and fixed his bail at $1000.

For the time being the question whether any legal status was established for Susanna Perez when she eloped with Añtonio Ortego must be considered as settled. Unfortunately the parties are poor and very likely Ortega will only have counsel appointed by the court when the case comes to trial, and without much time to prepare a defense. Had the defendant been represented by counsely yesterday, much of the testimony would not have been admitted. As it was, there was nobody present to champion the defendant's cause and make objection. The girl might have refused to answer the crucial questions but to her—and upon which the actual charge of rape heags—upon the ground that the cuestions tended to degrade her; and if it were held that the statutory provision would not serve in such case, where a crime had been committed, against the girl herself, there is little doubht as to what the girl would have done when she realized that in her hands lay the power to either acquit or convict the defendant, against whom she herself had no cause of complaint.

After the time of the defendant's arrest, considerable feeling was manifested in the community ever certain persons in the place selling liquor without a license. George Wilcox was one of those who was arrested for infringing upon the liquor ordinance, and though he possessed a restaurant license for liquor selling it would not have served to account for the stock of liquors he was supposed to have in the place. Wilcox, therefore, could not with any grace appear as the presecuting witness against Piantani, who was caught, after he broke into the restaurant, standing in front of the counter, and take chances on having his own case of selling liquor without a license knocked out by Piantani giving a full account of the stock of whisky and beer he found in the resetaurant. For this reason Wilcox took refuge in forgetfulness. He remembered nothing beyond the fact that his place had been broken into, and that was about all. No questions that Mr. Fredericks could frame sufficed to draw from the witness anything regarding the liquor that had been stolen at all.

Fowler is not often invited to participate in the little poker parties where the seductive game of draw, or stud, is played for revenue only, for this officer has the unpleasiant habit of seizing the appurtenances of the game, including the "kitty," and marching the managers of the game to the City Jail. Mr. Fowler is so well known now in the unlawful poker joints that he is given a frost whenever he appears on the scene, and no cards are played for money when he is present.

Although shown scant courtesy in most of the so-called clubrooms where poker is played, Fowler visited one club several days ago, where he was hospitably entertained, but where he was nevertheless an unwelcome guest. While strolling about in citizens clothes looking for violators of the poker-soom ordinance. Officer Fowler chanced to walk into a room in the rear of a Second'street cigar stand, where a number of men were amusing themselves with cards. While the officer was calmly slizing up the lay-out, a man who was apparently the manager of the place; approached him and inquiged respectfully:

"Looking for anybody?"

After this defiant reply was given, the club manager went to the cigar stand, selected a choice weed, and, returning to the visitor, said:
"Have a cigar."

"Thank you; I don't care if I do."
Fowler lighted the Havana and, seating himself on a chair, cocked his feet up on the back of another, and settled himself for a quiet smoke. When he had about half-finished his cigar, the manager again accosted him:

The man then went on to explain that the club was the headquarters of a certain labor union, and that only members of the craft were eligible to membership in the club. A sideboard was run under a United States license, but all members were assessed alike for its maintenance, and no drinks were sold for profit. POKER JOINTS STILL CLOSED. The Owners are Lying Low and Awaiting Developments.

Up to last night the owners of the various poker joints had not resumed business at the old stands, as was anticipated when the cases pending against them in Justice Austin's court were dismissed on Monday on account against them in Justice Austin's court were dismissed on Monday on account of a recent decision of the Supreme Court, which acts as a bar against the prosecution, in any court, of cases brought under the present poker-room ordinance. The owners of the poker rooms are lying low and awaiting developments. They wish to see what steps the City Council will take in regard to amending the present ordinance, and also to feel the public pulse. Some of them expressed the hope yesterday that by remaining inactive for a short time the sentiment against them would die out, and that they could then open up their places in back rooms on the second and third floors of buildings without incurring the displeasure of the public. They profess to believe that the hostility against them was due principally to the fact that their places were conducted on the ground floor.

Perhaps one of the reasons for their inactivity is the fact that although their cases have been dismissed in Justice Austin's court there are still charges pending against them in Justice Morgan's court.

MINES AND MINING

SOMETHING ABOUT PROPERTIES, IN THE PERRIS DISTRICT.

in the South Bisbee-Utica Mine Ivampah District - Gold and Black Sand-Mining Notes.

G. A. Doyle of Perris, Riverside county, Cal., sends The Times the fol-lowing about mining properties in that district:

events more or less closely, the min-ing interests in and around Perris are a puzzle, for this reason: A few years ago the Good Hope mine employed a large force of men and was operated to a Massachusetts syndicate, who went in for larger extensions, at bigger mill and other accessories, and wound up with a dismal failure, plus a lawsuit that has scandalized this section, and finally a partial shut-down of the works. It was almost impossible to find out whether the mine was good or no good, as the contending litigants severally claimed. What is the sequel of all this? Individual miners have leased portions of the mine, and by careful, systematic mining, are making big money out of the same mine that high-priced superintendents condemned as worthless. Furthermore, at this same Good Hope mine. Messis. Cheatham and Tipton, under the same exepnse as to royalties, etc., are, and have, for months been eyaniding the tailings from it, and their net monthly earnings are variably stated at from 3600 to 31000. Now, if this mine cannot be operated as a free-milling proposition alone, it is asked why some practical man or men cannot take hold of it, drop the hide-bound idea of "free gold or none," and operate it in a common-sense way, and get all the gold, as these individual miners are now doing, and make money out of it? "The Santa Rosa mine is in the same condition. It was dropped as a free-milling proposition and practically abandoned. Now, comes along F. L. Bates, takes the leavings of expert superintendents and mill men, and is shipping good fat gold bricks steadily went in for larger extensions, a bigger grade propositions at from $6 to $8 per ton.

The quiet, persistent work of the cyanide men is proving a revelation to our old-time pick-and-pan miners. It is needless to say that, from these practical object lessons, any of these mines will pay and pay big, if properly handled. It is being proven now, and any one can see it. The day is coming when this section will be mined on the low-grade plan. When all avenues of waste are closed in mining operations, as carefully as details are watched in our 'large manufacturing concerns, then mining all through this section will prove one of the most profitable industries we have.'

Arizona papers are printing figures s to the probable output of the United as to the probable output of the United Verde copper mines of Arizona, of which Senator-elect W. J. Clark is the principal owner... It is said that the present daily output is over one hundred tons of copper bullion a day, making 6,000,000 pounds as the monthly output. At the present price of copper, 18 cents a pound, the gross value of a month's yield is $1,080,000, equal at a like monthly average to $12,960,000. As the ore carries large values in gold and silver, it is estimated that the yearly output of the United Verde mines is not less than $18,000,000. STRIKE IN THE SOUTH BISBEE.

Peter Johnson, superintendent of the properties, who came up to Los Angeles last week, said, in speaking of the strike, that it was important, not alone for the ore encountered, but because it was an indication of large bodies of ore back of it. The Bisbee Orb, m an account of it, says: "Several large specimens of the ore were brought to town and were eagerly looked at by the many stockholders in our city. The present shaft is now down to a depth of within a foot or two of 600 feet. The formation during the past few days had been changing, and all the indications pointed to the nearness of an ore body. The intention of the company is to sink the shaft to the 700-foot level and then drift under the ore bodies in the Uncle Sam and Della Mac. The shaft was sunk where it is on account of its nearness and handiness to the railroad and the good location for the smelter and other improvements. The ore from the other claims could be handled more cheaply and conveniently under ground than over the rough hills. The sinking of the shaft will continue to the 700-foot level, when the drifts will be started." The company have expended to the present time nearly $30,000 in development work on the properties.

THE AMERICAN HOG. The high record of the preceding year, which was far above any previously, has been largely surpassed by western operations in the slaughtering of hogs for the year closed on March 1, the gain being over 17 per cent. in number of animals handled by packers. The returns show a total of 23.651,000 hegs converted into manufactured product, says the Cincinnati Prices Current, as compared with 20,201,000 for the preceding year, and an annual average of 14.865,000 for the years prior to the year now closed. For six years, 1872-73 to 1877-78, the annual average was 6,968,000, which period goes back to the beginning of summer-curing operations. Refrigerating methods have so changed the curing business that almost the entire packing industry is now conducted by houses which are equipped for continuous operations throughout the year.

"Fifty years ago the season's packing appresented a total of 1,560,000 hogs and an outlay of about $15,000,000. For the next ten years the annual average was 2,000,000 hogs, the highest record being 2,535,000. The average rose to 2,670,-000 for the next ten years ending 1888-69, the highest number being 4,070,000 in 1862-63, which was not again equaled until 1871-72.

which was not again equated until 1871-72.
Fifty years ago the population of the United States was about 22,000,000, and the commercial slaughtering of hogs in the West was about seventy in number to 1000 of the entire population. At the present time the population is 75,000,000, and the western packing for the past year represents 215 hogs to 1000 of population, besides the large number shipped for claughtering in eastern markets. These figures will suggest the great expansion of such interests within the life of some who then had, and still have, identity with this had, and still have, identity with this industry and knowledge of conditions attending it at that early period in its history. For 1871-72, following which history. For 1871-72, following which year summer-curing operations were inaugurated, the western packing was 4,830,000, and the population about 40,000,000, representing 120 hogs to 1000 of population.

For the eight months of what is 000,000, representing 120 hogs to 1000 of population.

For the eight months of what is termed the summer season, March 1 to November 1, 1898, the western packing represented 13,931,000 hogs, making an increase of 2,171,000 compared with the preceding year. The average weight was reduced 3½ per cent., and cost increased 15 cents per 100 pounds.

For the four winter-season months, November 1 to March 1, the total is 9,720,000 hogs, an increase of 1,279,000 compared with the preceding year. The average weight was reduced 1½ per cent. The average cost was practically the same as the preceding year. For the twelve months ending March 1 the total packing was 23,651,000 hogs, an increase of 3,450,000 compared with the preceding year.

TEN YEARS' RECORD. A comparison of 1888 and 1898, a period which includes the culmination of the re-markably brilliant progress which the country made between the panic socalled of 1874 and that of 1893 and the ecalled of 1874 and that of 1893 and the flwe years of depression following the latter year, shows a number of sur-prising features, says the Boston Transcript. Some of the comparisons are for the fiscal years ending June 30, and others are for the calendar year. In both cases a similar period is used for the comparisons given be-low:

HIS VIEW OF TRUSTS. A Philadelphia certified public accountant thus writes to the Prices Current of that city on trusts and the relations of people of his profession to the trusts:

"To begin with, the 'trust' in the common sense of the term, is an untawful, even criminal, organization under the laws of the United States, and, I believe, the majority of individual States. Now, not every financial combination or consolidation of commercial or trading interests is a trust under the States. Now, not every financial combination or consolidation of commercial or trading interests is a trust under the law, and many are of the greatest benefit to all classes, be it labor, consumer, manufacturer or capitalist. It seems to me, however, that when it takes an array of the best legal talent of the land seveal weeks to prove the legality of a thing, there can be very little legality in it, just the same as there can be very little life in a body if it takes a number of the best doctors in town to prove it alive. Without doubt modern business methods require organization of industrial enterprise on a large scale, and if on a legal and business basis such an organization will stand the tests of popular clamor, sensational press attacks, or legal procedure. It is also sure of outliving the day of reckoning, which is sure to come with the reaction in the wake of industrial boom. But how about the organizations, unlawful on their face, which, for instance, combine overestimated properties, aggregating, say, eight million dollars, whose total annual output figures up to about the millions and capitalize them at from thirty to forty millions? I can sympathize with and understand the manufacturer, anxious to protect his interests from the inroads of competition, or desirous to unload heavy business burdens upon other shoulders, the capitalists whose money is idle and who easily succumbs to the blandishments of the professional promoter, even the promoter himself. But I cannot sympathize with, nor understand the certified public accountant who lends his talent and the nimbus of his profession for the purpose of backing up the unscrupulous promoter. I hope for the good of the profession and its members that when the day of retribution does come there will be few, or better, none, of our fraternity who will be mixed up in the mess which then will see the light of day."

LOS ANGELES MARKETS.

LOS ANGELES, April 26, 1899.

There were no quotable changes in the local produce market yesterday.

The demand for poulity was very good for the middle of the week, as good as Saturday, but no advance was made in prices. The demand is from restaurants getting ready to feed a lot of people today.

Eggs are firm at 17 cents straight to the trade.

but no advance was made in prices. The demand is from restaurants getting ready to feed a lot of people today.

Eggs are firm at 17 cents straight to the trade.

Butter is notably firmer, there being generally only enough gilt-edge to go around.

Fancy old potatoes are tending to more firmness, and some predict a scarcity before many days.

New silverskin onlons are weak, the general jebbing price being $1. Choice old Yellow Danvers are steady at $1.40 to $1.50.

Vegetables tend slowly to lower prices.
Hay is very dull at quoted rates. Buyers of round lots are rather cautious.

NO NEWS FROM STARR.

Mrs.—C. E. Mendenhall reported to the police today that between 8 and 9 o'clock Monday evening, the hour when H. S. Starr disappeared, she was a member of a little family gathering at the home of her sister, Mrs. Cole, on California street, and they heard two screams from a carriage driving rapidly by. The ladies were alarmed by the cries, and the gentlemen opened the door and looked out. All could hear the rattle of the wheels, but the screams were not repeated. They came to the conclusion that the noise was made by hilarious individuals, and paid no more attention to the matter till they read of the disappearance of Starr from Oak Knoll ranch, when it occurred to them that they might have heard his sbrieks as he was carried away by als assailants. There is little breadth, depth or muchness to this "clew," but it is about all that has turned up today in relation to the mystery.

So thorough a search was made yesterday that the hunt for a trace of Starr has seemed to lag today. The Sheriff and deputies have not been around the ranch. Marahal Lacey has been looking around, but as the affair happened outside of the city limits, is disposed to let the Sheriff's of the manage the investigation. from the hall in which the council sar, and that force be used, if necessary to expel him.

At this juncture, Miller became very nervous, for the crowd which had gathered outside was in no mood to act as escort of honor. Deputy Constable Torrey soon appeared, but even a representative of the law did not prevent the shower of eggs of bad odor and uncertain age. Some of these eggs remained on the field of battle till this merning, and were in all stages, from those containing spring chickens, down. It had been reported during the day that a coat of tar and feathers was to be administered, but Lordsburg contains too many quiet, law-abding citizens to permit that, so Miller may be thankful to them that he is short of the same seen at the station this afternoon as was seen at the station this afternoon as an act of the station that a fermion as the station that a fermion is church to be interviewed, saying that his church to great the station the prevent that the council last evening, and that the case, among others, was discussed, the same than the same and the station of the local control was not among others, was discussed. #### PUGNACIOUS PLUMBER. Jubilant Mulrein Fought His Way into Jail. J. H. Mulrein, a plumber, returned from San Pedro yesterday evening, feel-ing very jubilant as the result of frequent contact with San Pedro whisky About 8 o'clock he entered the Eintracht saloon, in company with several friends, and proceeded to a card-room where a game of penuchle was in progress. Mulrein's jubilation there took the form of a desire to smash things, including the heads of the persons seated around the card table. Grabbing a chair he raised it above his head with the view of bringing it down upon the head of one of those nearest to him. The blow was deflected by a chandeller, which was shattered by the chair, and before he could renew the attack four or five men, including the proprietor of the saloon, V. H. Theobald, selzed the pugnacious plumber, threw him to the floor and sat or—him till Officer Robbins arrived and took him to the City Jail. Mulrein had a bloody nose when had needed the station and objected vigorously to rought to room to the board. About 8 o'clock he entered the Ein Mulrein had a bloody nose when he reached the station and objected vigorously to going behind the bars. Once inside he raised such a racket in the tanks that two trusties carried him upstairs bodily and locked him in the padded cell, where he was left-to roar and rant to his heart's content.

LETTERS TO THE TIMES.

Anent the Schools.

PARENT, Los Angeles: "I rise to emark" that there are principals and and principals also. It is a patent fact there are incapable principals as well as teachers in our city.

As for the disgruntled few, who had a little aftermath of consciousness of wrong-doing, when they rebelled at public reproof they had so well earned a little aftermath of consciousness of wrong-doing, when they rebelled at a public reproof they had so well earned, there is not a sane person in the city who will not agree that such teachers are hardly proper trainers of the child. Too many of our teachers are mere imitators; the teacher who has not some method of his or her own should as speedily as possible exchange his or her certificate, though it be a Normal School diploma, for a typewriter, and follow copying in a legitimate way. As for the pupil, his complaint might well be, as The Times suggests, that he is harassed by the technical pegformance of non-essential requirements, and it may be added, the kind of discipline practiced by teachers and principals of small minds. Let us hope that when the coursing is suppressed by a humane public, our little human animals may be looked after.

One crying evil that many teachers have to submit to is the serving under small-minded principals, who ask very little more of a teacher than that she pay them homage. The teacher who holds herself above such methods can do no good can come out of her, while the teacher who pretends to worship in her small way "sits with kings;" she can do no wrong.

She may antagonize pupils to her heart's content; she may induige in all the insulting remarks for children to convey to parents that she desires; all is condoned by the principal at her back; she may antagonize remarks for children to convey to parents that she desires; all is condoned by the principal at her back; she may antagonize ther work, in order to find time to flatter, but she must find that time. In this kind of school there is too much of the spirit that inspired Pat to chastise his spouse occasionally, as he said, "Just to show me ortoroty," and teachers who rely on good work and courteous treatment of all are too frequently reminded of this kind of authority. Principals should be persons of experience, healthy, well bred, full of tact and commonsense, and the propertical pay and the process of the schools, the S much restraint master weak.

When the Board of Education, aided by the patrons of the schools, the Superintenient and The Tines, eliminates these evils, and some others, then we of Los Angeles may justly lay claim to the "best schools in the country."

A Cowardly Sport.

A. C., Los Angeles: The rabbit chasing sport at the Agricultural Park It is the strong against the veak-the carniverous against the vegetarian.

The rabbit has no fangs and cannot defend himself against the hound. He is small in comparison and would have no chance for life on an open field. The money paid for admittance is a contribution to cruelty, and favors injustice and must degrade the participator in this so-called sport. If the Spanish bull fight is considered unworthy, how contemptible is this freak at the Agricultural Park. It is certainly not an American diversion. It is too cowardly, the American loves justice and fair play, even in war.

Liquid Air Surplusage.

H. GAYLORD WILSHIRE, Los An-C. G. Baldwin's ill disguised solicitude that free power from liquid solicitude that free power from liquid air will render valueless his water power reminds me of the cackle of the Christmas goose, which fondly imag-ines it is being chased for its feathers. Free power, if attained, will destroy all commercial value and force a com-plete reconstruction of both our indus-trial and social fabric.

Free power, if attained, will destroy all commercial value and force a complete reconstruction of both our industrial and social fabric.

If astronomers should predict that a comet would come in contact and annihilate the earth, I suppose Mr. Baldwin would lose interest in the prediction if he was assured that the point of contact did not happen to be near his front yard. If the "surplusage" theory did not promise such portentous changes I would not have patience to go over and over again the kintergarten explanation of the process. Mr. Baldwin with damnable iteration tiresomely reasserts that the process of expansion takes place under the same conditions or temperature at which liquifaction takes place. I have continually tried to make it plain that this is just the reverse of the truth. If it were so then no gain would be made. The heat during compression is taken away with comparatively no expenditure of energy by the coil of running water. In other words the power required to circulate the water through the coil is much less Than the power required to raise its temperature. The difference in temperature between what the compressed air would have attained were no water used to cool it, and the temperature at which it actually does enter the liquifier is an enormous gain in energy. Without such cooling liquifaction would be impossible.

The power required to make the water so circulate is comparatively infinitesimal with the power saved through its cooling the compressed air. As a practical illustration one may say that the muscular energy required to make the water and the energy required to make the water circulate in limited quantities might easily be developed by one man, but one man nor 100 men could not produce energy to heat the water the degrees. The difference between the energy required to circulate the water and the energy with which it withdraws heat from the compressed air should be impossible.

A. A. ALLEN, Los Angeles: It is interesting to note, in a general way, the alacrity with which many of our law-making bodies respond to the advances made by trusts and combinations, and the haste which many of the lawmakers display in their eager efforts to "stand in." that the study of the lawmakers is play in their eager efforts to "stand of the Sugar Trust works Congress."

the fire insurance combine making its maiden effort to control municipal affairs.

Where there is competition, trusts and combines cannot flourish, and where trusts and combines flourish competition takes a back seat.

But the object of this communication is not for the purpose of entering the political arena, but for calling attention to the new license ordinance in which it is proposed to govern the fire insurance business in this community. At present every insurance company in this city is paying into our treasury the sum of $1$ each month for the privilege of doing business, and as there are eighty-two companies it is presumed that $82 per month is being collected. If this is not enough, and if, as it is usually understood, the object of license is to secure revenue only, why not assess each company $10 per month.

This would bring in ten times as much revenue and add $$20 per month, or $9840 per year to the city's income. This would be of material assistance in paying salaries, and then if there was no attempt to shut off competition and the people were allowed to make best terms possible with the competitors for business, they would rise up and call our city fathers blessed. On the other hand, should the combine by its manipulations succeed in having the proposed license ordinance bassed they would have occasion and probably would think of the said city fathers in a different vein of temper. It will be well for the committee to look out for the poker. Our trusts and combines are big enough to look out for themselves.

An Honest Rum Seller.

The following article was publised in the Fayetteville (Tenn...) Express, in 1840, and signed by H. E. Johnson of that place:

"Friends and Neighbors—Having just opened a commodious shop for the sale of liquid fire, I embrace this early opportunity to inform you that, on Saturday next, I shall begin the business of making drunkards, paupers and beggars, for the sober and industrious eiement of the community to support. I will undertake at a short notice, for a small sum, with great expedition, to prepare victims for the asylum, the poorhouse, penitentiary and gallows. I will furnish an article that will increase the number of fatal accidents, mukiply the númber of distressing diseases, and render those which are harmless, incurable. I shall deal in drugs that will deprive some of life, most of them of property and all of peace. It will cause fathers to become fiends, wives widows, children orphans and all mendicants. I will cause many of the rising generation to grow up in ignorance, to become a burden and a nuisance to the nation. I will cause mothers to forget her offspring. I will sometimes even corrupt the ministers of the gospel, obstruct the progress and defile the purity of the church, and cause temporal and eternal death. And if any should be so impertinent as to ask why I have the audacity to bring such accumulated misery upon a happy people, my honest reply is—money. The spirit trade is lucrative, and some professing Christians give It their cheerful countenance. I have a license, and if I do not bring these evils upon you, somebody else will. I live in a land of liberty. I have purchased right to demolish and ruin the souls of those who choose to honor me with their custom. I pledge myself to do all I have herein promised. Those who wish any of the evils above specified brought upon themselves or their dearest friends, are requested to meet me at my bar, when I will, for a few cents, furnish them with the certain means of doing so."

The Great Store welcomes you with as much ardor as though all alterations were completed. The interesting things here are second only to the Jubilee demonstration. The expansion and growth of this business from the smallest of beginnings is a marked event in mercantile circles. The four broad floors are now used for displaying the choicest merchandise obtainable. They supply almost every need.

The store has been the power which has given Los Angeles the reputation of being the cheapest place in the United States to live. It has grown to be the biggest of its kind in California; it has passed all competitors. It has demonstrated its leadership in style-molding and value-giving. It is the popular place to trade. It is one of the sights of Los Angeles. The interesting things for today are:

"It is the constant dropping of the water that wears away the stone." It is the constant spending of the dime here and the dollar there that ruins many a man's chances for success in life.

It is just this difference between constantly spending little by little and regular, systematic saving that marks the line between success and failure.

The drop, drop, drop, of a fixed amount each week to your credit with the Union Bank of Savings will wear away the stone of want over which many a man is likely to stumble.

This same "drop" is an opportunity to lay the foundation for a fortune which a wise, careful person may take advantage of, building dollar by dollar, a dollar at a time.
